Today

Humpty Dollar.
Fast Flying.
Rays Go Through You.
Valuable Indian Women.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

TODAY'S MONEY news. The dollar falls down again. It might be called a Humpty Dumpty dollar.

New York's Chamber of Commerce wants to go back to the gold standard, and is dreadfully afraid of the big black inflation. Your Uncle Sam, "buying gold quietly abroad through the R. F. C." put the price up yesterday to $32.57 an ounce.

WHAT A bargain the United States could have had if instead of going off the gold basis and then buying gold, with punctured dollars, it had contracted for all the gold it wanted, for regular dollars, and had then gone off the gold basis with the gold bars stored away in Washington?

That is what "best minds" might have done, but it would hardly be worthy of a United States President.

JIMMY WEDELL, of Louisiana, flew from Washington to New York yesterday in 50 minutes, and will try to do it in 40 minutes. His average speed, 260 miles an hour, would cross the continent in less than twelve hours.

To realize what that means in the way of improvement, remember that our ancestors, holding presidential elections early in November, postponed the inauguration until the following March, that members of the electoral college and the elected might have time to travel from their homes to Washington.

With flying established, Inauguration Day could easily be changed from March 4 to November 24.

HAVING PHOTOGRAPHED negative and positive electrons, particles of the atom charged, some with negative, some with positive electricity, Prof. Millikan, of California, says both have "the same mass." It was supposed that electrons positively charged had 2,000 times the mass of those negatively charged.

Prof. Millikan says:

"This, with the discovery of the positron by Dr. Carl D. Anderson, is the most fundamental and far-reaching advance of the country."

You have to know many other things to know why.

WHILE YOU are wondering, cosmic rays, roaming through the universe, with an electronic energy of three billion volts, are "drilling holes straight through your body from head to heel."

And that cosmic bombardment is good for you. "Fearfully and wonderfully made" is putting it mildly.

LAWS OF the Iroquois Indians, about three hundred years old, have been discovered by the Smithsonian Institution, proving the intelligence of those primitive red men.

Constant blood feuds caused so many killings that the tribe threatened to become extinct. Wampum fines were established for killings, and the fine for killing a man was 10 strings of wampum whereas for killing a woman the fine was 20 strings of wampum.

A woman, according to the wise Iroquois, was worth twice as much as a man.

There was nobody there to put the Iroquois "off the wampum basis," and the fines impoverished many families. But they discouraged murder.

AUTHORITIES in Jerusalem believe that the Arab uprising against Jewish immigration is over for the time. Arab crowds were discouraged by British planes flying low over their heads.

SOME MEN are doggedly honest to the end. In East Orange, N. J., John H. Berrett, automobile salesman, unemployed, discouraged, killed himself by turning on the gas.

But first he pinned four dollars to a note, explaining that the money was to pay for the gas used. That would be considered very "fussy" in some high financial circles.

Of 1,000,000 human beings, 999,999 cling desperately to life. The one millionth seeks death just as desperately.

Yesterday at Schenectady, Miss Ida Josephine Tracki, only 21 years old, walked onto the railroad tracks when she saw a train approach pulled by two locomotives, sat down between the rails and waited until the locomotives rolled over and killed her.

Who can imagine what went on in the mind of the girl as she sat waiting?

WE WORRY much about ten billion dollars that Europe owes us and does not intend to pay, and worry little about crime costing the United States thirteen billion dollars every year.

It is urged that alien criminals be deported, but there is no special reason for blaming the thirteen billion dollar a year crime bill on the foreign-born. We have efficient home-grown criminals

THE RECENT era of "cheap legal beer and expensive bootleg whisky" has worked in favor of temperance. New York state's tax commission reports that since beer came in and whisky drinking diminished, there has been a "sharp decrease in revocation of automobile driving licenses because of drunkenness."

It had been predicted by earnest prohibitionists that legal beer would mean more drunken drivers.

Reynolds Kidnap Plot Foiled

DECOY LEADS U.S. MEN TO SUSPECT

$10,000 Demanded in Threat on Tobacco Heir's Wife

International News Service.

WINSTON-SALEM, N. C., Nov. 4.—Authorties today moved to prosecute John Lanier, 35-year-old textile worker arrested by federal agents as the author of a plot to kidnap the pretty young wife of Richard J. Reynolds, Jr., heir to the R. J. Reynolds tobacco millions.

Lanier, trapped as he was about to pick up a decoy package designated in threatening notes to Reynolds, was charged with extortion by threats to kidnap the beautiful young society leader and sportswoman.

Mrs. Reynolds is the sister-in-law of Libby Holman Reynolds, Broadway torch singer and widow of the late Z. Smith Reynolds, who was mysteriously shot to death here last year.

Lengthy questioning of the prisoner by Federal Department of Justice operatives brought an admission that he had written two letters to Reynolds demanding $10,000 in cash if Mrs. Reynolds was to remain unmolested.

Placing the decoy package of bills at the designated spot, the officers hid nearby and waited until 6 a. m. yesterday until Lanier walked by several times, hesitated and then picked up the package.

Mrs. Reynolds meanwhile was being carefully watched at the family home, Reynolda. She is reported to be in a delicate condition of health. Mrs. Reynolds, the former Elizabeth McCaw Dillard, was married to Reynolds last New Year's day at the age of 25. She has been told of the threatening letters, it was stated.

Reynolds is heir to $20,000,000 of the estate left by his father, the late R. J. Reynolds. He will receive the fortune on his next birthday, in April, 1934.

U. S. TO VOID GREEK TREATY

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4.—The United States probably will renounce the recently signed extradition treaty with Greece as a protest against the refusal of the Greek courts to extradite Samuel Insull, former Chicago utility magnate, it was learned today.

A statement in connection with such action will be issued by the State Department within the next 24 hours.

The attitude of the department is if the Greek authorities are not going to abide by the intent of the treaty there is no use keeping it in effect.

It was feared failure of this government to take some action to express its attitude on the Insull procedings might tend to nullify the effect of the treaty with other countries.

Two men were injured and other persons escaped injury when two automobiles sideswiped on the Noblestown road, near Oakwood road, early today.

Farmers Arm in Strike

By THOMAS A. PLEDGE
International News Service.

DES MOINES, Ia., Nov. 4.—An aspect of gravity heretofore almost unbelievable developed in the constantly spreading farm strike today after a day of unprecedented violence.

Developments came in quick succession as the strike rapidly gained momentum in five states:

Minnesota strikers were reported to be secretly organizing military units under former service men and to be providing themselves with guns and tear gas bombs.

Mills County (Ia.) authorities requested that troops be called out after a pitched battle in which 500 farmers participated and in which dozens were cut and bruised.

Reports that strikers were forming military units in Wisconsin emanated from Congressman F. H. Shoemaker at Minneapolis. He advised President Roosevelt of the fact in a telegram.

Four companies of strikers already have been formed into units, with veteran soldiers at their head, Shoemaker said he informed the President.

He also warned the President that "it may be impossible to quell demonstrations unless farm prices are raised immediately."

'Fix Farm Prices,' Plea Of Governors to Roosevelt

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4.—(AP.)—Five Midwest governors, stirred by new reports of farm unrest in their states, today called upon President Roosevelt to put into effect within 30 days a drastic program of price-fixing and rigid discipline for agricultural production and marketing.

They said their program had been "rejected" by Secretary Wallace and his aides while Wallace said he was withholding a decision pending a study to determine whether their program was "workable and enforceable."

Leader Ready to Spread Farm Strike in 21 States

DES MOINES, Nov. 4.—(AP.)—Milo Reno, leader of the National Farmers' Holiday Association farm strike, today wired the 21 state leaders of his organization to be prepared to "throw the strike into full gear" should President Roosevelt reject the holiday demands for cost-of-production prices on farm products.

The demands were presented to the President by five midwestern Governors today.

Boy Spectator Hurt At School Grid Game

William Paro, 12, of 1117 Larimer avenue, was in Pittsburgh Hospital today with a fractured right leg suffered while watching the football game between Peabody and Westinghouse High schools at Peabody Field yesterday, police reported.

Cheering on the sidelines, the boy was injured when a player was forced out of bounds and three opponents piled on him, police said.

FAYETTE PIT WORKERS TO RETURN

Roosevelt Pledge of Supervised Vote Ends Strike

By AL GOUGH
Staff Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4.—Fayette County's mine holiday leaders were on their way home today with good news.

Jubilant over President Roosevelt's assurance of a square deal and promise of a government-supervised election "at once," the eight representatives sent here by the membership in District 4, United Mine Workers of America, today declared the two-month-old coal strike at an end.

They gave their word individually and collectively to President Roosevelt and Gen. Hugh S. Johnson that their followers would move in from the picket lines and report for work "as soon as possible," many of them by Monday morning.

RYAN SATISFIED

Martin Ryan, so-called insurgent, who almost lone-handed led the strike movement as it spread like wild-fire into practically every mining hamlet of Western Pennsylvania, was loudest in his praise of President Roosevelt and his "new deal." He said:

"What he gave us couldn't be better. Because of his assurance on this agreement, I am sure the United Mine Workers' movement will go over 100 per cent in the region and every miner will back the NRA to the best of his ability and do everything he can to make it a success."

Ryan, as well as District President William Hynes and his other associates, were elated over what they termed "the greatest victory ever obtained by the United Mine Workers in Pennsylvania."

Duke-W.-J. Tilt Heads Grid Card

Pittsburgh's "Big Three" of collegiate football, the Panthers, the Tartans and the Dukes, were involved in important games today with the Duquesne-Washington and Jefferson battle at Washington, Pa., heading the district card.

Elmer Layden's gridders of Duquesne University, undefeated in seven night games at Forbes Field, will attempt to win by daylight.

Leaders of Fayette County's "captive" miners in the weeks-long warfare with the H. C. PINCHOT SEES 'CHISELING' END

MILFORD, Pa., Nov. 4.—(AP.)—Gov. Pinchot said last night he hoped "the chiseling of the steel trust will stop" as a result of the understanding reached at Washington for miners to return to work in captive mines of Pennsylvania. The Governor declared at his home:

"I am greatly pleased that the miners in the captive mines are going back to work on the President's assurance that they will have a square deal.

"On that basis I hope the chiseling of the steel trust will stop. The men are doing the right thing and have been doing so. The steel trust ought to imitate them."

Floyd Gibbons Here Sees Recovery Under Way

Floyd Gibbons, radio and newspaper star, predicts the depression is on its way out because the building industry has shown signs of coming back to life.

One of America's greatest wanderers, he declared today that he's going to stay home hereafter there's more excitement in this country today than there could be in foreign lands.

Here to speak at the Amen corner diner tonight, he said:

"I blush when I think of the little wars I've covered and compare them with the revolution going on in this country now.

"But for the first time in history, a major political party has [illegible] man ... on a job. That would have been heresy a few years ago. Now industry is told that it must face the responsibility of giving men jobs, on pay, for their upkeep in welfare taxes."

Gibbons criticized the critics of President Roosevelt and the recovery program, and commented that the bitterest feeling he ever had in his life was when he heard that he paid more income taxes than J. P. Morgan. He added:

"Not that I mind paying income taxes. The more I have to pay, the better I'll like it. But it burs me up when I heard about Morgan."

Other speakers at the dinner in the Hotel William Penn tonight will be Philip LaFollette, former Wisconsin governor, and Dr. Raymond Moley, editor and member of the Roosevelt "brain trust."

Gibons and LaFollette will speak at 6:15 tonight over station WCAE.

Throng Sets Record For Political Meet, Cheers Mayor

By MARK SHIELDS

Mayor John S. Herron, Pittsburgh's master political showman, threw away his prepared speech at the Republican mass meeting in Duquesne Garden last night, and devoted practically all his allotted time to emphasizing the solidarity he claims marks his party on the eve of the municipal election.

Eight thousand persons who crowded the Garden in the biggest indoor meeting in the history of the city in a municipal campaign, caught the spirit of the Mayor's stage-managing, and shouted, cheered and showered neighbors with confetti and ribbon streamers as he stepped aside to introduce men and women who testified to the unity of the Republican movement.

The only undertone of Republican fear touched on the candidacy of Charles G. Lane, Jr., for Juvenile Court. David I. McCahill, Judges Harry H. Rowand, Frank A. Piekarski and Benjamin Lencher and Coroner William J. McGregor all cast aside pleas for themselves to beseech votes for Lane against his Democratic opponent, Gustav L. Schramm. The candidate himself was given a part of the radio time to send his

Old Boat Identified As Amundsen Relic

SEATTLE, Nov. 4.—(AP.)—A battered old skin boat, in storage so long at a dock it was almost forgotten, has been identified as belonging to the late Roald Amundsen, Arctic explorer, C. M. Hansen, first mate on the Maude, said, after he had seen its picture in a newspaper:

FAN DANCE OUT, SALLY SAYS

KANSAS CITY, Nov. 4.—(AP.)—Sally Rand, who fan-danced her way from the Century of Progress in Chicago to a two-picture contract in Hollywood, is ready to give up her fans in disgust.

So far as she is concerned, the imitators of the stage and night club can have them, she said here last night at a party attended by friends and relatives.

She said:

But she qualified her statement with the assertion that she would if the studio required her to do in pictures or personal appearances.

"The fan dance was a means to an end, and the end was not so good."

WIRE POINTS NEW CLUE IN SEWER MYSTERY

Relative of Victim Sought to Solve Identity Tangle

Single Rose Tribute For Mystery Girl

The flower was found on top of the case in which the body has been viewed by thousands of Pittsburghers by Deputy Coroner Mullen Jackson, who placed it on the body of the slain girl.

County detectives today again turned their attention to New York City in an attempt to unravel the snarled clues in the murder of the "mystery girl."

A telegram was received by Chief County Detective George W. Murren from Bremen, Ga., which may lead to the solution of the three-cornered dispute over the identification of the attractive young woman whose nearly-nude body was dragged from a storm sewer off the Allegheny River boulevard near Verona, last Monday.

Chief Murren and Detective Peter A. Conners insist the identification of the girl as Catherine (Boots) Brown stands, and they are continuing their search for her alleged husband, Nick Palladino.

Palladino disappeared, detectives said, a few months ago after his separation from the Brown girl a few weeks after their marriage last May.

ANOTHER NAME

Another "identification" came yesterday from Joseph Ezolt, a Monessen steel worker, who viewed the body and insisted it was the girl he married under the name of Ethel Treadway.

The telegram received by Murren was sent by Mrs. E. J. Dahl, reported to be a sister of the Exolt woman and advised the detective chief:

"Have no Pittsburgh address. Wire Mrs. Sybil Degaetano, 310 Alexander avenue, New York. Letter follows."

A telephone conversation with residents of this address by the Sun-Telegraph disclosed that Mrs. Degaetano had moved to the Bronx several weeks ago, leaving no address.

County detectives aver the Treadway and the Brown girl are the same, and base their opinion on the fact that a letter found in the Brown girl's room in Chianti street was signed "Ethel," and was addressed to a sister, "Sybil."

Ezolt said the girl he married had a sister "Sybil" in New York with whom she corresponded.

And then two inmates from a Clark street house came to the morgue and identified the girl, who they said had lived with them under the name of Dorothy Jackson.

BODY ON DISPLAY

Notwithstanding the "identifications," John Black, the morgue superintendent, refuses to accept any as final and has ordered that the body remain on display until a final identification is made.

Louis Busa, of Larimer avenue, who was taken into custody yesterday by city detectives who had been told, they said, he had been well acquainted with the Brown girl, was released after questioning. He told the detectives the dead girl was the "Boots" Brown whom he had known.

County detectives yesterday sent the girl's fingerprints to Detroit for identification after Ezolt told them he separated from her there.

Resolute Fire Laddies Take Truck for Parade

President of Council John Reed, and Fire Chief Miles Davidson last night told the boys they couldn't take the No. 1 fire truck in a Democratic anti-metropolitan plan paradet his afternoon through the North Boroughs.

The boys held a meeting that lasted far into the morning, and decided the fire truck must be in the parade, which is to boost the candidacy of John Heinz for sheriff.

At 6 a. m., they got Chief Davidson out of bed and with him came his consent. Then the boys won over Burgess D. A. Atkinson, and a few hours later the fire truck was all decked out in ribbons and colored paper ready for the parade.

Accused Burgess Declines Hearing

Lee A. Wiser, burgess of Forest Hills, has waived hearing for court on a charge of misdemeanor in office brought by W. J. Campbell, citizen of the borough, before Justice of the Peace Calvin D. Blakley.

ROOSEVELT WINS MINERS' PROMISE TO RESUME WORK

U. S. TO WATCH ELECTION ON UNION

Action Means End of Strike, Leaders Declare

delegates was prepared to urge upon the local representatives of District 4 immediate return to work.

Ryan and his associates, by agreeing to go back to work under the President's plan, have laid aside their demand at this time for unqualified recognition of the United Mine Workers Union. To "strike until Frick recognizes the union" was their recent battle cry.

A meeting of local presidents and secretaries has been called for 7 o'clock tonight in Fraternal Home, Uniontown, for the express purpose of voting on acceptance of the terms to which Ryan and his associates agreed. Hynes Ryan and all of the other delegates will make personal reports of their conferences here with the President and Gen. Johnson and explain how the securing of an "immediate" election of representatives is, they say, a victory over the captive mine operators in their alleged attempt to undermine the U. M. W. A. with the so-called company union brotherhoods.

LEADERS' PLEDGES

Hynes declared:

"In order to make the NRA a success, we're going along whole-heartedly with the President, Gen. Johnson and the American government for the protection of our people and the welfare of our union."

Patsy Minerd:

"I believe that Roosevelt, Gen. Johnson and the federal government are going along with us, and I believe the NRA will be a big success."

Andy Ritchie:

"If every coal miner could talk to President Roosevelt, they would sacrifice a little here and there to make this NRA a success and put the nation and our union on an upward trend."

Silas S. Lynch:

Dan Sabula:

"I feel that we have won the greatest victory in the history of the Connellsville coke region with Roosevelt and Johnson with us and the NRA behind us."

James A. Hall:

"I feel that with the help of Gen. Johnson and President Roosevelt our nation is going over and it is there to stay."

Ralph Courtley:

"We are thankful to President Roosevelt and Gen Johnson for the wonderful reception and feel certain that the United Mine Workers of America have won the greatest battle in the history of our organization."

JOHNSON DELAYED

Johnson, delayed on a trip from New York, arrived in the capital shortly after 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon. The miners' delegation had been waiting since 1 p. m. He took them immediately into his office, asked them what they wanted and, after hearing each representative individually, started at once for the White House.

President Roosevelt had been expecting them.

Without delay, they were ushered into the executive chambers and told to be ready to "speak out" their grievance.

As they approached the door the President looked up from his desk, heaped high with official correspondence, and waved a friendly greeting. His ringing voice boomed out:

"Well, hello there, boys. Where's Marty Ryan?"

One by one the delegation was introduced by Gen. Johnson as each stepped forward to grasp the hand of welcome.

They got down to business immediately. Gen. Johnson explaining the miners' case and calling upon the delegates one at a time to voice the committee's grievances.

ASKS QUESTIONS

The miners answered openly and without restraint.

President Hynes afterward explained:

"It was just like talking to your buddy in the next place."

Each man had his say and then the President started talking.

He promised them a "square deal." He assured them he would personally see to it that the terms of the agreement would be rigidly enforced. He heard their plea for an immediate election.

FRICK MINES START MONDAY

The mines of the H. C. Frick Coke Company will reopen Monday at 6 a. m., Thomas Moses, president, announced last night to the Associated Press.

They have been closed since the middle of September, when the miners began their strike to force the company to recognize the United Mine Workers.

Philip Murray, vice president of the mine union, expressed satisfaction with the results of the conference of the men with the President, saying:

"I am confident the men will quickly return to the pits. I feel it is to their interests as well as the interests of the country as a whole."

Murray called a meeting for local leaders of the strike area for tonight in Uniontown to personally hear the report of the delegation.

When the captive mines resume in full, about 20,000 men will be employed.

Anthracite Miners Avert Strike Call

WILKES-BARRE, Nov. 4.—(AP.)—Having narrowly averted a strike call, leaders of the anthracite miners of Pennsylvania today awaited the decision of Joseph H. Willits, of the University of Pennsylvania, asked by the National Labor Board to investigate the labor trouble in the hard coal field.

At his home in Swarthmore last night, Willits, dean of the university's Wharton school, said he had not decided whether to accede to the request.

Somerset County Coal Accord Signed

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., Nov. 4.—(AP.)—An agreement has been made between Somerset County coal operators and officials of District No. 2 of the United Mine Workers of America providing for the checkoff and the usual strike and lockout penalty.

Johnson's Statement On Mine Truce

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4.—Following is the statement issued by Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, Recovery Administrator, following his conferences with miners' leaders:

"Representatives of the United Mines Workers of America, employes of the captive mines, called on the President to discuss conditions of the election under the terms of the agreement reached with captive mine operators on October 31.

"[illegible] estimate by these representatives that the men would [illegible] attulated [illegible] reasonab[illegible] practically all be back to work by Wednesday and that no more violence is expected, the President said he would ask Senator Wagner to send representatives of the National Labor Board at once to prepare the elections and to pass upon the qualifications of the voters in advance.

"One representative of the board will be sent to Carmichaels, for Greene County; Uniontown, for Fayette County; California, for Washington County, and Pittsburgh, for Allegheny County."

It Would Be a Golden Chance For King Midas

-By ARTHUR (BUGS) BAER-

An ounce of gold is now 32. That will keep the public out.

We would like to buy about six tons of that stuff. On margin.

Some mysterious buyer grabbed a hodful of the golden sash weights in London yesterday. We are going to use it to bribe the children into eating their spinach at noon.

We have got to balance the monetary budget. In the meantime all the cash on hand is mostly 90-day notes.

MINE ELECTION MACHINERY SET

By JOHN P. COWAN
Staff Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4.—Machinery was set in motion early today by the National Labor Board to carry out the spirit and intent of President Roosevelt's promise for immediate elections in captive mine territory to name mine workers' representatives for collective bargaining.

Pending official notification from the President, the board instructed its executive officer, Dr. W. M. Leiserson, to mobilize a body of mediators in Western Pennsylvania to prepare for the elections.

Dr. Leiserson, now in New Orleans, will proceed at once to the captive mine territory to supervise the election activities.

It was announced that Dr. Leiserson would arrive on the ground not later than Wednesday. Officials of the Labor Board stated that several days would be required to examine the qualifications of the voters and that possibly a week would intervene before the date for the elections.

The work of the board will be carried on simultaneously in Greene, Fayette, Washington and Allegheny counties. It was stated that Leiserson would have a sufficient corps of assistants to handle the elections without delay.

REFUSE GRAU'S OFFER TO QUIT

HAVANA, Nov. 4.—(AP.)—Representatives of all factions which originally backed President Grau San Martin today refused to accept his resignation and again ratified him as president.

After a night-long session at the home of Sergio Carbos, the group announced it not only had refused the President's resignation, but had not even considered the resignation of the cabinet.

When he went to the meeting at midnight, Grau carried in his pocket the resignation of his cabinet.

The action of the group at the Carbos residence came at a time when there admittedly was trouble within the Navy where a group of new officers insisted they would not accept any president who was not "an authentic revolutionary" or who was in any way connected with the mediation efforts of United States Ambassador Welles.

GARDEN OF GETHSEMANE COMBED FOR SLAYING CLUES

INDIAN, DANCER DEAD 2 DAYS WHEN FOUND

International News Service.

JERUSALEM, Nov. 4.—The biblically-famous Garden of Gethsemane and the Mount of Olives were the scene of investigation today into the mysterious slaying of an American dancer and an Indian Moslem, apparently her guide.

The victims' bodies were found in an olive grove near the garden, historically famous as the scene of Christ's betrayal by Judas and lying at the foot of the Mount of Olives.

The girl was Carol Niedergesswass, 25, known on the stage as Carol Winter and as Joan Winter.

The man, Muhammed Kirmani, was believed to be from Madras, a member of the Indian Civil Service.

Police were baffled as to a motive for the crime. Miss Niedergesswass had been shot in the head and her companion in the back. Doctors said each had been dead about 48 hours when their bodies were found.

It was possible the pair were victims of sniping by Arabs in one of the frequent outbreaks of shooting which have occurred in the vicinity during the past 10 days, but discovery of but one fatal wound on each body tended to indicate outright murder.

New York Woman Believes Murdered Girl Daughter

NEW YORK, Nov. 4.—(INS.)—Convinced that an American girl, mysteriously shot to death in Jerusalem near the Garden of Gethsemane, is her daughter, Carol, 25, Mrs. Albert Godfrey, wife of a Brooklyn manufacturer, today sought frantically to obtain details of the tragedy from Jerusalem authorities and the American State Department.

Mrs. Godfrey explained the family moved to Brooklyn from Seattle, Wash., about eight years ago after having changed their name from Niedergesswass to Godfrey.

Mrs. Godfrey also said her daughter was known on the stage as Carol Winters and to many of her friends as Joan Winters.

Mrs. Godfrey said her daughter went to the Holyland to obtain material for a book and that she had received a letter from Carol about two months ago from Constantinople. In it was this poem:

"I stood in the shadow of death,
And I reached out my hand
And Life took it unto his,
And we understood each other."

Passport Issued Girl, State Department Says

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4.—(AP.)—The State Department issued a passport in April, 1932, to Carol Vesta Niedergesaess, who mentioned in her application that her stage name was Joan Winters.

The applicant gave Seattle, Wash., as her birthplace, and stated she was a daughter of Otto Niedergesaess, of the Taft Hotel, New York City.

Necklace Stolen

MRS. WM. ANDERSON, JR.

JEWELS VANISH FROM DRAWER

Search was being made today for a $1,500 pearl necklace reported missing from the home of Mrs. William M. Anderson, Jr., young society woman of 1229 Winterton street.

Mrs. Anderson expressed the belief that the necklase, 12 inches long with a diamond clasp, was taken by a burglar. She said it disappeared from a dresser drawer between October 26 and November 2. Jewelry in another drawer, including pieces of greater value, was untouched.

The necklace, a wedding gift from her husband, was insured, Mrs. Anderson said. Its disappearance was reported to the detective bureau yesterday.

JUDGE DELAYS DIVORCE CASE

Faulty testimony as to how her husband moved out the furniture, while she was shopping with her mother, caused Judge W. Heber Dithrich to continue for a week the divorce action of Helen Peake, 3640 Massachusetts avenue, against Eugene H. Peake, Carrick.

Conflicting testimony by the the daughter and her mother, Margaret Einhouse, as to whether Mrs. Peake had tried to communicate with Peake after the desertion caused Judge Dithrich to remark:

"It looks as though you were to go shopping and he was to move out. You cannot obtain a divorce just for the asking. This does not look like malicious desertion as charged."

DAVIS DAUGHTER WED TWICE

NEW YORK, Nov. 4.—(AP.)—The 18-year-old daughter of Richard Harding Davis, the novelist, had disclosed today that her marriage Tuesday to Jean Louis Frank Kehrig had been their second wedding ceremony. She said:

"We married in August in Guernice, Spain, a little town you probably won't find on the map. We were traveling through Spain with friends.

"When we got back to France, we found the marriage was not legal there—was legal only in Spain. So we arranged, Frank and I, that he would follow me to this country and we would be remarried here. It was a secret, just between us."

Mrs. Kehrig, whose husband speaks only French, said they would reside six months in New York and then six months in France.

VOLPE SLAYING SUSPECT TO APPEAL

Spinelli Carries Fight Against Extradition To Justice Minister

Giuseppe (Big Mike) Spinelli's fight against extradition to Pittsburgh to stand trial for the massacre of the Volpe brothers, will be carried to the minister of justice in Rome, Tuesday.

Spinelli's attorneys announced they would make another stand against the long fight for his extradition after hearing the Italian Supreme Court rule yesterday that he is no longer an Italian citizen and that therefore he must return to Pittsburgh.

Whether he is an Italian or American was the main point in question at yesterday's hearing, one of a series of court actions instituted to stave off extradition. A few months ago the Naples Court of Appeals ruled against him.

U. S. PLEASED

First Assistant District Attorney George F. P. Langfitt announced that if the Italian ministry of justice supports the Supreme Court's decree, he and District Attorney Andrew T. Park will ask Gov. Pinchot to name Assistant Chief of County Detectives James S. McGinley and Lieut. Frank G. Ferris, of the homicide squad, to bring the fugitive back.

Astounded at the rejection of their arguments by the Supreme Court judge, the defense attorneys said they would appeal to the Minister of Justice.

'VOLPES' FRIEND'

The three Volpe brothers, Johnny, James and Arthur, were shot down in front of their Wylie avenue coffee shop, July, 1932.

Spinelli embarked secretly for Italy, which he had left in 1925, and went back to his native town, Agropoli, of which he once was the acting mayor. He was traced to his native village and was arrested at the request of local detectives and lodged in jail at Naples.

NAVY AIRPLANE LANDS ON LAKE

A United States Navy amphibian plane built for the use of President Roosevelt, forced down yesterday on Seaton's Lake, near Uniontown, by a heavy fog, was to continue its journey to Washington today with Admiral E. J. King, new aviation chief of the Navy as its passenger.

But a "cold" engine delayed its take-off, and Admiral King, who arived in Pittsburgh after a three-week inspection tour of the Pacific coast, said he would leave by train if the plane was held up. In the meantime he visited the Pittsburgh Screw and Bolt plant.

Two farmhands, Archie Cromwell and Samuel King, working nearby, rowed out and brought Lieut. Commander Darleton McCauly, Chief Pilot Frank Bushing and Mechanic Jack Donnelly, to shore.

Admiral King flew into Pittsburgh from the West Coast on a TWA plane.

PLAY HUT BOY'S DEATH HOUSE; NECK BROKEN

Shed's Falling Window Traps Child, 5, in East End Tragedy

A playhouse proved a deathhouse yesterday for 5-year-old Billy O'Neil.

He was last seen alive, frolicking in the back yard of his home at 1218 Hyatt street, East End. A short time later a neighbor, Mrs. G. Aupperle, passed by the yard late in the afternoon and saw Billy apparently looking in the window of a little shed in which he and his playmates often gathered.

She called to him. He did not answer. She moved closer and saw that the boy's body was still. His head was caught beneath the window. His neck had been broken by the falling of a loose window as he tried to climb into the house.

Billy recently recovered from a severe attack of meningitis. The family doctor had called his recovery a miracle.

He leaves his father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Michael O'Neill, and four brothers, James, 13; Edward, 12; John, 8, and Regis, 19 months. Mr. O'Neill is a salesman with the Colonial Biscuit Company.

SUIT OVER BANK ACCOUNT OPENS

Judge James H. Gray yesterday heard testimony on exceptions filed by Robert S. Sproul, receiver in bankruptcy for Michael H. Parrish, Inc., regarding an item of $40,000 in the account of the Secretary of Banking regarding the closed Franklin Savings and Trust Company.

The sum is claimed as an asset of the bank, by virtue of an assignment it holds, covering a payment made by the state to the Parrish firm. The exceptants assert the money belongs to Michael H. Parrish, Inc., which had an account with the closed bank.

George W. Taylor, Jr., who represented the Secretary of Banking, was to have come from Chicago as a witness, but his appearance was prevented by a train wreck.

The Guild presented the play, "Porgy," on Broadway in 1927, where it ran for more than 500 performances, and later 300 performances on tour. It also had a successful run in London with its original cast.

Officials of the Middletown Army air depot, doubting reports of a mid-air explosion, said they believed the ship had hit a mountain in the darkness.

Dog Catcher Gets Worst of Brush With Quarry

GALVESTON, Tex., Nov. 4.—(AP.)—It's news indeed when a dog catches a dog catcher, which happened to J. Tillman, Galveston's Negro houndchaser.

He tied into a truculent canine in a downtown alley. The dog tore Tillman's net off the hoop, then fastened himself to the dog catcher's arm with a vise-like grip.

Tillman finally got away and the dog departed victoriously down the alley.

KENDRICK, DEAN OF SENATE, DIES

SHERIDAN, Wyo., Nov. 4.—(AP.)—A flood of messages today brought the nation's condolences, as Wyoming mourned the death of its senior United States Senator, John B. Kendrick.

The 76-year-old dean of the Senate, a Democrat, frequently described as "lifting himself by his bootstraps" to a place as one of the leading figures of Wyoming, died late yesterday, after an illness of less than two days. Physicians said his death probably was due to cerebral hemorrhage.

Mr. Kendrick's political career started in 1910 when he was elected to the state senate. He educated himself in spare hours, while riding the range as a cowboy.

Constables Oppose Minor Court Change

VERBAL CLASH MARKS SCHOOL TAX HEARING

Proposed Teacher Pay Cut, Building Bonds Center of Dispute

The Board of Education is confronted with an avalanche of "do" and "don'ts" as a result of a verbal clash between organized labor, taxpayers and civic leaders at yesterday's initial public hearing on the proposed school budget for 1934. Chief points of contention were a proposal for a 10 per cent additional teachers' salary cut by the Pittsburgh Real Estate Board and the budget proposal for a $1,500,000 building bond issue.

Members of the board were urged to retrench by the Pittsburgh Real Estate Board, the Allegheny County Real Estate Owners' and Taxpayers' League, and the Building Owners' and Managers' Association.

OPPOSE PAY SLASH

They were urged to maintain the present salary schedule and building program by P. T. Fagan, president of the Pittsburgh Central Labor Union; Leo Green, secretary of the Building Trades Council; Dr. Thomas Coakley, pastor of Sacred Heart Church; John Rogers, vice president of the Longshoremen's Association; Mrs. Harry Sampson, of the Pittsburgh Council of Churches; Mrs. Stuart Henderson, of the League of Women Voters; Mrs. Saul Lavine, of the Parent-Teacher Association; E. J. Holland, of the South Side Improvement Association; Dr. Marion McKay, University of Pittsburgh.

'OUT OF LINE WITH NRA'

Leo Green said:

"Last year we asked you to proceed with your building program and put men to work. Today we more strongly urge this policy. If men are put to work they will be able to pay their taxes."

Fagan said:

"We are opposed to a reduction in the wages of teachers or any one connected with the schools. It is out of line with the NRA."

While recognizing that the educational system must be maintained, I. Leonard Aronson, president of the Taxpayers' League, questioned the need of kindergartens trade schools and the teachers training school, declaring that the cost of kindergarten training should be on the parents. He emphasized his belief that eventually the cost of supporting the schools should be taken from real estate and placed with the state, making every person support the schools.

Abolishment of kindergartens and trade schools would "make criminals of many children on the South Side," E. J. Holland declared in replying to Aronson's proposal.

Father Coakley came to the defense of the teachers training school with this statement:

"The training school is responsible for the high efficiency of Pittsburgh teachers. Destroy it and you strike a blow at the very heart of the school system—the teacher."

ASKS SEPARATE BALLOT MARKS

Democratics wishing to vote a straight ticket were advised to mark a cross opposite the name of each individual candidate in a statement issued today by E. Lowry Humes, chairman of the Bar Association committee on election frauds. Humes said:

"In the 1932 election thousands of straight Democratic ballots were fraudulently altered by addition of crosses opposite the names of individual Republican candidates.

"A repetition of these frauds is invited through the sample ballot issued by the Democratic organization, asking Democrats to vote the straight ticket by placing one cross opposite the word Democratic in the first column.

"If the Democratic voters mark their ballots this way it will be easy for dishonest election boards to add additional cross marks opposite the names of their favorite candidates."

Cafes Favor Separate Beer, Liquor Licenses

NEW YORK, Nov. 4.—(AP.)—The Society of Restaurateurs favored separate licenses for the sale of beer and liquor after repeal, in a resolution adopted yesterday.

Paul Renkel, president, urged that the liquor control regulations be observed, and said that otherwise violations might lead to a new basis of appeal for national prohibition by dry organizations.

ARREST SPECHT AT PITT DANCE

While Pitt sophomores and their faculty advisors danced to the strains of Paul Specht's Orchestra in Hotel Schenley early today, the leader was summoned to the basement where he was arrested on a charge of failure to pay wages to a former dancer in hs employ—now in the chorus of a burlesque.

The dancers danced on unaware of the incident.

The arrest was made on a writ of attachment by Constable R. G. De Fillippo, from Alderman Michael De Rosa's office on complaint of Mildred Sigal, who claims Specht defrauded her of $300. Specht, who furnished bond immediately, said:

"She's just trying to get publicity by linking her name with mine. As soon as you get a little fame, that's what happens."

ANTONIO CONSTABILE

ELIZABETH CONSTABILE

Neighbors Shelter Four Orphaned By Shooting

Neighbors today were caring for the four young children of Antonio Constabile, 50, who fired a bullet into his brain after fatally shooting his wife, Elizabeth, 37, in the kitchen of their home, rear 319 Second street, Rankin, yesterday.

The children, Nick, 11, Rose, 10, Martin, 8, and Lucius, 6, went home from school yesterday to find a crowd and the morgue ambulance outside. Weeping, they were taken to the adjoining residence of Mrs. Mary Sanatra.

After a brief parting they were reunited 10 days ago. Constabile had been out of work for a year and his wife supported the family, it was reported.

Mrs. Sanatra found the bodies, after hearing cries. A 32-caliber gun lay beside Constabile.

Heroic War Dog Dead, 'Lives On' in Armory

CHICAGO, Nov. 4.—(AP.)—Old Goldberg, the dog, is dead, but will never occupy the hero's grave set aside for him.

Goldberg, 16½-year-old World War mascot of Battery B, 122nd Field Artillery, died yesterday in an Evanston dog hospital, after which it was announced that he will be stuffed and placed in an armory, instead of lying in a grave the Illinois Pet Memorial Cemetery assigned to him.

Battery B smuggled Goldberg aboard a transport to France when he was 2 months old. He was gassed in the Argonne and was A. W. O. L. near Rambouicourt, remaining away from his outfit for a month.

Smuggled back after the war, he was consigned to a cook, who sold him. A few years later members of the battery traced and found him. One of the battery's members, William McKeighan, of suburban Wilmette, cared for Goldberg ever since.

It was McKeighan who rejected the idea of Goldberg being in a cemetery, for Goldberg was important. So much so, in fact, that Wilmette issued an honorary dog tag to him for life.

Elders Withdrew; Were Not Defeated

Through misinformation from a source hitherto regarded as reliable, the Sun-Telegraph on Thursday published the statement that J. Allison Reed, Frank S. Cousley, William A. Smith and E. C. McQuiston had been defeated June 7 for re-election as elders of the Third United Presbyterian Church.

Today it was learned from an authoritative source that this was incorrect. All four had withdrawn their names after nomination and the votes they received were cast in spite of their withdrawal.

The Story of David -:- CHAPTER I -:- Told in Pictures by Dan Smith

While Samuel mourned because the Lord had rejected Saul from reigning over Israel, the Lord said unto him: "I will send thee unto Jesse, the Bethlehemite; for I have provided me a king among his sons." So Samuel went to Bethlehem and looked upon seven of the sons of Jesse, but the Lord rejected them all, telling Samuel: "Man looketh on the outward appearance, but the Lord looketh upon the heart."

Then Samuel asked Jesse, "Are here all thy children?" and Jesse replied, "There remaineth yet the youngest, and, behold, he keepeth the sheep." So Jesse sent for David, who was withal of a beautiful countenance.

And the Lord said to Samuel, "Arise; anoint him; for this is he." So Samuel took a horn of oil as the Lord bade him, and anointed David to be king over Israel. And the spirit of the Lord came upon David. (Continued next week)

Judge Gray to Speak In Duquesne Church

Judge James H. Gray will be the speaker at a "Men's Night" meeting in Duquesne Presbyterian Church, tomorrow at 7:45 p. m.

HILL DISTRICT VICE TO DRAW ATTACK

An attack on disorderly and gambling houses in the Hill district will be made Sunday night by the Rev. M. B. Fuller, of the Emory Methodist Episcopal Church, North Highland avenue, in a sermon entitled "Clark Island or Clark Street."

Mr. Fuller said that he is basing his sermon on a personal investigation of the Hill, as well as information received from persons acquainted with the situation. He said:

"In the Third Ward there is said to be not less than 10 gambling dens and 45 disorderly houses, many of them close to the Franklin School. The district comprises streets such as Colwell, Clark, Fulton, Whitcomb and Townsend. The Fifth Ward is said to be as bad."

Clark Island, off the coast of New England near Plymouth, he pointed out, was the spot where our first seeds of civilization were laid. Clark street, "no more vicious than other streets in the Hill," he said, was picked because of its alliteration with Clark Island.

A. D. Brandon, former Morals Court magistrate, who, he said, accompanied him during the investigation, and pointed out the "corrupt spots," will make a short address. The church service will start at 7:45.

HITLER AND JEW CHURCH TOPIC

Bible conferences will be conducted at the Second Presbyterian Church, Penn avenue and Eighth street, by Evangelist William E. Pietsch, of Los Angeles.

Dr. Pietsch will give his first address tomorrow at 3 p. m. on "Einstein, Hitler and the International Jew."

Recently returned from Europe, Dr. Pietsch will speak on a wide variety of topics during the conferences. Meetings will be held nightly, excepting Saturday, at 8 o'clock.

Action on Goldenson Resignation Expected

A special meeting of the board of trustees of Rodef Shalon congregation has been called for Sunday evening, when the resignation of Dr. Samuel H. Goldenson is expected to be presented and acted upon.

He has been unanimously elected rabbi of Temple Emanu-El, New York, and has indicated that he would accept the call.

The call came as the congregation was preparing for its fall season.

Dr. Goldenson has chosen for his topic tomorrow at 11 a. m. "The Social and Ethical Significance of the NRA."

THRONG CHEERS TESTIMONIALS OF UNITY

appeal for votes to the entire county.

Lane was pictured as a young man who would be sympathetic to the interests of the children before the court, and the candidate taking note of charges that its patronage would be dictated by political bosses, said he would run the court himself, asserting:

"I and no one else will be the judge of that court."

Every candidate on the ticket, as well as Samuel Harden Church, president of Carnegie Institute; J. W. Bamford, manager of the Gulf and Koppers buildings, and David I. McCahill, founder of the Boys' Club, urged the election of the Republican ticket, but Herron stole the show without making a speech on any issue involved in the campaign.

Bamford is active with the Building Owners and Managers Association. That organization has disclaimed all responsibility for his political utterances.

Stepping to the microphone near the end of the meeting, the Mayor ostentatiously tossed aside a speech he had prepared, dealing with the excellent financial condition of Pittsburgh and detailing the manner in which relief bond issue money had been spent for wages to the needy.

CRONKHITE CALLED

First to his side Herron called Gen. Adelbert Cronkhite, veteran commander of the 80th Division, who will cast his first vote in this election. The General said that other voters had made mistakes, but that he would have a clean record, for he intended to vote for Herron, "the best Mayor Pittsburgh ever had."

Next the Mayor called upon County Controller Robert G. Woodside and Clerk of Courts S. J. Topley, both of whom had opposed him in the primary, and each asserted an earnest support for the whole Republican ticket.

Like marionettes dancing at the end of a string, other speakers were manipulated to the microphone by the Mayor, the biggest hand among those who had opposed him being given Robert N. Waddell, former Carnegie Tech football coach, who was a councilmanic candidate on the Citizens' League ticket.

BIG TWO-MAN ACT

But the big act of the Mayor was a two-man affair, bringing together Senator James J. Coyne and City Controller James P. Kerr. Coyne, who had sat at the Mayor's side during the meeting, with Judge Lencher on the other flank, advanced to the microphone as Dr. Kerr came from the other side of the stage, and the two clasped hands and beamed as the audience went wild.

In quick succession the Mayor brought before the audience Recorder of Deeds Samuel D. Foster, District Attorney Andrew T. Park, Mrs. Laura J. Hinnau, Mrs. A. G. H. Frazier, County Chairman William H. Coleman, Treasurer Robert S. Cain and a galaxy of Republican leaders, each introduced with the wide Herron smile which set the audience into new uproars.

Sharing the spotlight with the Mayor was Judge Ralph H. Smith, independent, who entered late, and was given an ovation as he marched toward the platform. Judge Smith said Republicans in the primary had testified their belief in the integrity and ability of Mayor Herron and the Council candidates, and that since the primary nothing had happened to change that opinion to which he heartily subscribed.

There was in the Judge's speech, however, a note of warning, that the Republican party in the city, county and state could continue victorious only if it merited public support through a stern fight against election cheating and for the advancement of social legislation flouted in the past.

Former Gov. John S. Fisher, sitting as a plain citizen in the audience, was called to his feet by Herron, and was given a loud cheer.

COYNE JOSHES M'NAIR

Coyne, summoned for a speech, said he wished to testify to some of the nice things which had been said about the Democratic mayoralty candidate, William N. McNair. But he added:

"All a nice man gets is a big wedding and a quiet funeral."

Dr. A. L. Lewin, school board member and ardent supporter of Herron, was introduced by the Mayor as his answer to those who charged he would try to put the schools into politics through an elective system.

Bamford asserted that McNair's tax theories would aid the big building owner, and Councilman W. Y. English derided the few Republicans who had deserted to the Democrats. He intimated payment of campaign deficits had played a part in their flop.

BOARDS MUST YIELD BOXES

Election boards have been ordered to deliver ballot boxes and returns to county officials immediately after completion of the tabulation Tuesday, Director William T. Rees, of the Bureau of Elections, announced today. The returns will be given to the prothonotary, and the boxes to Rees, designated by the court as custodian.

Rees pointed out that election board members failing to deliver the boxes and returns would be in contempt of court. He said the prothonotary's office would be open all Tuesday night, as will his receiving station for boxes in the basement of the county office building. Election board members can receive their pay while delivering the boxes.

He declared the court order empowers him to take boxes from boards failing to make delivery. Deputy sheriffs probably will be called for this duty, Rees said.

INDORSEMENTS AID DEMOCRATS

William Wright, Republican candidate for Council in the primary, announced for the Democratic ticket.

The women's division of the Independent Republican Organization of the Thirty-second Ward and most district chairmen of that organization, will support the Democrats, according to their chairmen.

The Federated Shop Craftsmen of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, claiming membership of 3,600 affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, and the Twenty-seventh Ward Italian American Club, declared for the ticket.

Lew Miller, chairman of the McArdle workers in the Twenty-fourth Ward, and Bess Sauers, ward chairman for Mackrell workers, have enlisted with the Democrats, according to the Democratic ward chairman.

Thomas to Honor Debs in Radio Talk

Norman Thomas, Socialist candidate for President two years ago, will pay tribute to the memory of Eugene V. Debbs in a 15-minute address from 12 to 12:15 p. m. tomorrow. It will be carried in this city over station KDKA.

Primary Candidate Backs Regular State

J. J. Watkins, of West End, who was a candidate on major tickets for Jury Commissioner in the primaries, has announced his indorsement of the regular Republican ticket.

Democratic Rally Set in Mt. Lebanon

A mass meeting, preceded by an automobile parade, will be held tonight by Democrats of Mt. Lebanon at 622 Washington road. Addresses are scheduled by six well-known speakers, and microphones will be installed to accommodate an expected overflow crowd.

DEMOCRATS END DRIVE TONIGHT

The Democrats will wind up their campaign tonight with a rally in North Side Carnegie Music Hall. All their candidates and leading supporters will speak.

Mayoralty Nominee William N. McNair will deliver the principal address. His speech, also to be given over station WCAE at 8:30 p. m., will review the paramount issues of the campaign.

Prominent in the speaker's list will be Register of Wills Joseph N. Mackrell and James F. Malone. Others are John M. Huston, Thomas J. Gallagher, John J. Kane, Walter R. Demmler, for Council; John J. Kennedy, A. Marshall Thompson, for Common Pleas Court; James L. O'Toole, Austin L. Staley, for County Court; Gustav L. Schramm, for Juvenile Court; John Heinz, for Sheriff; Dr. Vincent L. Marino, for Coroner, and Mrs. Carroll Miller.

There will also be meetings at Union Hall, Renton; Davis School, Stowe Township; Homestead Library, Munhall; Clairton headquarters, Clairton; Stewart School, Library; Granish Hall, Coverdale, and at 622 Washington road, Mt. Lebanon.

PROPER SOCIAL CONTACT URGED

Co-eds do not have to be supervised and restricted with an "iron hand" if you guide them properly, according to Mrs. W. C. Eichenlaub, of Edgwood Acres, president of the Women's Guild of Duquesne University.

That was the opinion she expressed yesterday afternoon at a tea sponsored by her organization in the music school for freshmen co-eds, members of the faculty and mothers of Duquesne students. She said:

"The campus life of the co-ed does not have to be restricted with an iron hand today if there is the proper social contact between the mothers, their daughters and the faculty. Such contact will bring about a proper and understanding guidance of the college girl."

About 100 persons attended the tea. The college symphony orchestra played several selections.

PUPILS TO CAST 'VOTES' MONDAY

Sun-Telegraph ballots will be used in the Beechwood School mock election to be held by students of the seventh and eighth grades Monday.

Similar elections will be conducted by the students in all public schools throughout the city. Students have been nominally assessed and registered. Rallies were held, nominees praised and criticized.

Election boards have been named to control the voting. To avoid political complications the results will not be announced until Wednesday, when the regular election is over.

Globe-Trotting

—By LOUIS L. KAUFMAN—

Hello, ladies and gentlemen:

The nurses are beginning to descend upon me.

Another letter today from one of the profession, who says she is a backwoods nurse, and places her location in the "Land of the Crazy Hunters."

She doesn't mean that at all, but she has been up since dawn. That's when the hunters' bang-banging started.

She can't sleep with all the noise so she writes to me.

As she writes she notices six rabbits, two squirrels, and two pheasants pass her window, and, thinking of the hunters who have been tramping through woods and underbrush since daybreak, looking for them, she concludes that the bullets fly thicker than brains.

As you perceive she is a little irritated on being unable to sleep through the bombardment. If she signed anything but Nurse X, we might have arranged to have one of the hunters appease her ire by sharing the results of his marksmanship, if any.

* * *

I want to acknowledge the many telephone calls and letters from John Jamison, George Smith, and Oscar T., who informed me that I had opened the deer season unofficially when I spoke to the hunters.

The next night I closed it, and any hunter who takes a shot at a deer does so on his own responsibility now.

* * *

And Martha B., confused globe trotter who has been listening to political candidates for so long, submits:

"Yesterday upon the stair
I met a man who wasn't there
He wasn't there again today
I wish to gosh he'd go away."

'Bloomer Girls' on Three Stations

Pittsburgh, Wheeling and Fairmont radio drama fans hear a most unusual one this evening.

"Nine Striking Beauties," a tragicomedy of baseball, as the Bloomer Girls of the gay 90's played it in their travels from town to town, is heard over WWVA, Wheeling, at 5:45 p. m.; WWMN, Fairmont, 7 p. m. and WCAE, Pittsburgh, 7:45 p. m.

An illustrated story of these female Babe Ruths and Al Simmonses appears in tomorrow's American Weekly, big feature magazine distributed with the Sunday Sun-Telegraph.

'OPERATOR 13' MYSTIFIES RADIO FANS

Hundreds and hundreds of radio listeners have been startled during the last week by the mysterious messages to "Operator 13", that have broken in on some of the Pittsburgh radio station broadcasts.

Who is "Operator 13?" Everyone, everywhere, is wondering. From the character of the messages it is apparent that "Operator 13" is a secret agent in this territory. And it filtered through in one of the messages that "Operator 13" is a woman.

It is fair to assume that many know the identity of "Operator 13" and her activities. Yet from the number of telephone calls the radio stations have received and the deluge of inquiries to the Sun-Telegraph Globe-Trotter, it is evident that there are many more hundreds who are wondering about her identity, which, up to this time, seems to be shrouded in a cloak of mystery.

The message breaking in on the broadcast today states that "Operator 13" will find further instructions in tomorrow's Sunday Sun-Telegraph. This may clear up the mystery.

A CLEAR COMPLEXION

Ruddy cheeks—sparkling eyes—most women can have. Dr. F. M. Edwards for 20 years treated scores of women for liver and bowel ailments. During these years he gave his patients a substitute for calomel made of a few well-known vegetable ingredients, naming them Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets. Know them by their olive color.

These tablets are wonder-workers on the liver and bowels, causing a normal action, carrying off the waste and poisonous matter in one's system.

If you have a pale face, sallow look, dull eyes, pimples, coated tongue, headaches, a listless, no-good feeling, all out of sorts, inactive bowels, take one of Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets nightly for a time and note the pleasing results.

Thousands of women and men take Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets—now and then to keep fit. 15c, 30c and 60c.

Acheson Judge Nominee In Washington County

WASHINGTON, Pa., Nov. 4.—Attorney C. L. V. Acheson, former District Attorney and a member of the Washington County bar for 35 years, today launched his campaign as candidate for judge of Common Pleas Court. Attorney Acheson was nominated to fill the vacancy on the Republican ticket caused by the sudden death Thursday of Judge Erwin Cummins, of Houston.

Acheson was a cousin of the late Ernest Acheson, who served 20 years as United States representative and is a cousin of Attorney M. W. Acheson, of Pittsburgh. Two generations ago, Alexander W. Acheson, uncle of the candidate, was president judge of the Washington County courts, a position he filled from 1866 to 1876.

Acheson was born in Washington County, October 21, 1873, and was admitted to the bar in 1898. He is a graduate of Washington and Jefferson College. He was appointed Assistant District Attorney in 1905, serving in that position until 1908, when he was elected District Attorney, a post he held until 1912.

Acheson is attorney for the United Mine Workers of America in Washington County and is also one of the counsel for the State Banking Department in Washington County. He is widely known in Western Pennsylvania and active in Republican politics.

Judge Cummins' name already had been printed on the ballot, but the County Commissioners authorized the use of stickers.

Mrs. van Hoorn is now living in Vienna. Both she and Mrs. McCormick-Goodhart made their debut in Washington.

There's much the same intimacy about an Art Society concert as there is at a musical afternoon and evening at the home of a friend.

Artiste Gracious

And the Art Society audience at Carnegie Music Hall last night to hear Grete Stueckgold greeted her after her first song as an old friend. She was most gracious, and amazingly generous with her encores.

Art Society concert audiences seldom are distinguished by beautiful costuming. Its members usually resort to third or fourth-best evening costumes or dinner dress, and many of the smart set wear street clothes. But the audiences are most interesting and represent artistic, musical and university circles as well as social ones.

The most attractive gown worn last night was that of tall, slender, blonde Mrs. Joseph H. Bialas. Her black crepe gown had azure blue taffeta to fashion the wide-cut shoulders and to form a v-neck-line in front and a v-decolletage in back. The taffeta was tied in a huge bow to suggest a bustle, and the ends streamed to the hem-line.

In Crepe Gown

Mrs. E. W. Mudge was in maroon velvet, Mrs. David McG. Wittenrow in dark copper-red velvet brocaded in ribbed block design, and Mrs. Hanson Rose in a similar shade of one of the new ribbed velvets.

Mrs. D. M. Clemson was there. Mrs. A. W. Sherrill, Henry Harris, the Pittsburgh pianist; Dr. Thomas S. Baker, president of Carnegie Institute of Technology, and Mrs. William Maclay Hall, president of the Pittsburgh Symphony Society.

Over her black crepe gown Mrs. Hall wore a bolero jacket of ivory lace, and she carried a small black velvet muff, on which a gardenia was fastened.

Bolero Jacket

Mrs. John E. Nelson was in black chiffon and lace, her young daughter, Peggy, in a flowered crepe gown. Mrs. Carl H. Borntraeger in wild grape crepe, Mrs. T. Clifton Jenkins and her daughter, Elizabeth, both in street costumes.

Some of our students will be home for the Thanksgiving holiday and the week-end, although most of them will wait for the long Christmas holidays.

Post-deb Margret Brill, the A. F. Brills' daughter, who is continuing her harp studies at the Curtis Institute of Music, Philadelphia, will be among the few to come home.

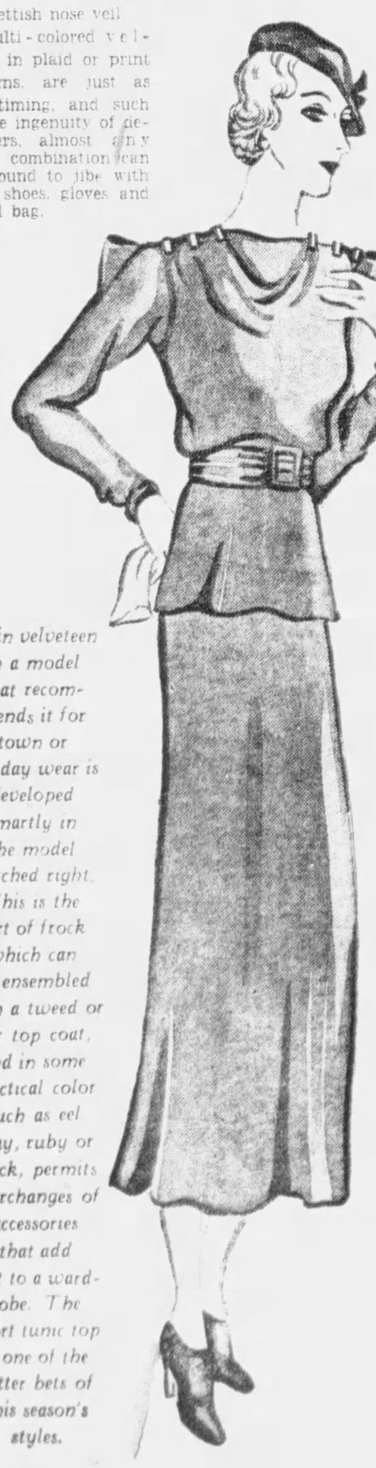
CLOTHES GET INTO THE VELVET

By PRUNELLA WOOD

THE commuting girl who catches the 8:15 every day toward the advancement of her career frequently wants to dress for a hold-over theater trip at night—a date that will be preceded by dinner for two in a not too leisurely oasis. Velveteen, or velvet that has been woven to aproximate informalities, is one of the fabrics that should interest her for this sort of occasion.

The most demure secretary can appear behind her note book garbed in a dark copperish severely tailored velveteen frock, which at dinner time can develop worldly tastes when it is complemented with a tiny black hat bedizened with monkey fur or a coquettish nose veil.

Multi-colored velvets, in plaid or print designs, are just as two-timing, and such is the ingenuity of designers, almost any color combination can be found to jibe with hat, shoes, gloves and hand bag.



Plain velveteen in a model that recommends it for town or Sunday wear is developed smartly in the model sketched right. This is the sort of frock which can be ensembled with a tweed or fur top coat, and in some practical color such as eel gray, ruby or black, permits interchanges of accessories that add zest to a wardrobe. The short tunic top is one of the better bets of this season's styles.

Plaid velvet, one of the most youthful and hardy versions of this all-day fabric, is used for the two-piece frock sketched left. The kitty-whisker bow is a becoming accessory in an off-white shade of shiny satin, warranted to add the "dressmaker" touch to a tailored, practical costume. This model is one that can be worn on the street with or without a fur piece, or under a top coat.

U. S. Air Defense and After Repeal Rum Smuggling Discussed by Leading Writers

MAXIM GORKY, world-famous novelist and commentator on Russian political developments, writes that "Lenin glowed with a passion to end human woe in Russia . . . his words reminded me of the glitter of steel shavings."

LEON TROTZKY, former commander of the Russian Red Army, sees vast trade advantages in relations between the United States and the Soviet . . . these economic elaborations would attain a sweep unheard of in history.

DR. JULIUS CURTIUS, former Prime Minister of Germany, in a special cable from Berlin, warns that "threat of isolation will not bring Germany back to the League of Nations" and adds "Reich refuses to be kept in the strait-jacket of the Versailles arms provisions."

CHARMION VON WIEGAND, well-known American newspaper correspondent, writes an intimate story on the coming of Litvinoff, chosen as an Apostle of Peace by Lenin as far back as 15 years ago, to Washington as an envoy.

Some Men Neglect Wives To Be With Friends

This column today is for men.

(But that's no reason why you shouldn't listen in, Sister Anne. And what a Big Bang you're going to get if you do).

It started with the story of a Snoozing Husband. Nita's Man. Whatta Man! He held all the heavyweight snoring records.

Every day the procedure was the same. Back from work—head in the paper while Nita dished the chow—a hasty gobbling—then more paper—then the radio—and so to bed.

Nita told us in no uncertain terms what she thought of a playmate like that!

Now comes Tina with her exhibit A. Which should start the war guns booming in a few more home-sweet-homes.

Dear Nita:

I've just read your letter, and I want to tell you that there are lots worse things than a Sleeping Beauty for a husband. I know, because I have one of them.

My husband can't say no to his friends. They call him on the phone at all hours of the day or night, and, no matter what, he never turns them down.

He has always had a friend or two for whom he would do things, regardless of what other conflicting plans he might have had—even to the extent of interfering with his business.

We have been married for 18 years. I always wanted to be an ideal wife—to give my husband his freedom and let him go with his friends, so they couldn't say he was "henpecked." But in my case the game didn't work.

WILL NOT REFUSE

As the years go by, I can see these friends taking my husband away from me, in spite of all I can do, so that I am getting to be just a mechanic who runs the house. I ask for no castles or fur coats or jewels—but I would like to have a companion, an understanding comrade. Yet it seems that such is not my lot.

I haven't even many friends. When I was a girl I had plenty, but after you're married you hate to admit to either friends or relatives that you are all alone and would like someone to please go out with you.

I love my husband and I know that he loves me. But he just can't say no when someone wants him to go some place. A loved-one can cause heartache such as no physical pain can equal.

How pleased and happy I would be if I could hear my husband say, just once, "No, boys. There will be no card playing (or golfing, or whatever it is) because I'm taking my wife out today."

LONESOME AND BLUE

The woman whose husband comes home and goes into a doze at least has her "sleeping Brutus" with her at home, while I lie awake at all hours of the night, lonesome and blue, and wondering when he will come home. This happens six days out of seven, too—holidays included.

Sometimes I ask myself: Are friends a blessing or a curse? And I think my husband's friends have been a curse to me. They and his inability to turn one down, no matter what.

Maybe this won't help you much, but I had to get it off my chest, and let you know that there are some things worse than a husband who won't stay awake. You can likely kid yours out of his funny ways, but mine seems hopeless. TINA.

So that's that! And is your face red, Big Boy! I wonder!

Do you, too, treat the wife like the well-known Door Mat, and give the gladness of your smiles to your telephone pals? And if you do, just what sort of a break do you think you're handing the girl you promised to "love and cherish," that wonderful morning 10 years ago?

How would you like to be treated like that?

Think it over, Freddy!

Drawn by Nell Brinkley

The old, old bone of contention! The old argument, as good as the everlasting ones at the dinner table about religion and politics: Which is the most beautiful, blonde or brunette? BLONDE or BRUNETTE! Fair and pale, with eyes of the sky, the color of roses and sunshine, or dark and sparkling, like moonlight on a tropic sea? The debate never dies and is good for eternity. It began, perhaps, with Eve and Lilith—if the world knew them both at the same time. We think of Eve as mantled in golden hair and Lilith as locked with hair the color of night's own curtain. Experts in beauty rouse in fiery debate over the question of whether Cleopatra was a ruddy redhead, a golden Greek, like Helen of Troy, or ravenhaired as the Egyptians whose country she queened it over. To the heart susceptible to the russet hair, she MUST have been a red-head. Was she not a BEAUTY? To that wide membership of manhood who are weak for blondes, Cleopatra could never have been aught else but flaxen. And to the man who slips whenever a "bright, dark eye" is cast his way, Cleopatra is and ever will be the most famous brunette of them all.

To Cupid there is no such thing as fixed beauty. His album is vari-colored. There are both white pearls and black in his treasure box. He wears one with as great a joy as the other. And finds one as good, as desirable, as effective as the other. He likes the color of heaven and the sun. And he dotes upon heaven, too, when it is black with night, velvet pricked with stars. He likes the dusk as well as the morning.

A plaintive letter comes in and it says what many a letter has said before: "You draw more blondes than brunettes. DO you like them better? Do YOU think they are more beautiful? Or are you one yourself?"

NO to the first two questions and yes, a little retiring "yes," to the last. And here's the reason why, told several times before, you see more gold than black lacquer in the writer's pictures. When the "dead line" approaches, and the masterpiece must be done, it is quicker to turn out blonde hair than black. You would think it the easiest thing in the world to let yourself go and lay on black. To "sling ink!" But it isn't. It's a fragile, mincing affair that makes the tongue to be poked out with the intensity of effort. And the minutes fly! So lots of times it's quicker to leave her a blonde! Perhaps she started out to be Lilith, but the rush of modern life turns her out a blonde.

Don't you worry, little Brownie who wrote the letter! Poems have been written a-plenty about "the nut-brown maid," "the wild, black eye," "the bright, dark orb," the "hair like night's veil."

DO gentlemen prefer blondes? It's my experience they prefer the girl they love. And she's good and sweet, and kind, and beautiful, and clever whether she's dark or fair. —NELL BRINKLEY.

Correct Manners

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

Answering 'In Kind'

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I received an invitation to a bridge luncheon. At the bottom of the card was R. S. V. P. and her telephone number. I telephoned to this girl and told her I accepted the invitation. All the other girls answered by mail. I would like to know if I did the correct thing. D.

Since the invitation to the bridge luncheon was sent by mail, it would have been better if you had responded by mail. However, I can well understand that you easily could have interpreted the fact that the hostess gave her telephone number as a suggestion that the acknowledgment might be made by telephone.

When we answer invitations it is wise and helpful to keep in mind that, as far as possible, invitations should be answered "in kind." That is, formally-worded invitations should be answered with acknowledgements worded in the third person, that is, formally. Informal notes of invitation should be answered with informal notes answering that invitation . . . Invitations by mail should be answered by mail.

R. S. V. P.?

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Will you please advise me as to whether or not it is proper and necessary to write an answer to a wedding invitation. The invitation is written by hand. How should the acceptance be written? L.

You haven't told me enough about his invitation for me to answer you very helpfully. If the invitation is worded formally, and is to the church ceremony only, it is not necessary to acknowledge it. But if the invitation includes an invitation to a reception or luncheon or dinner or supper after the ceremony, it must be answered.

If the invitation is in the form of a note inviting us, say, to an informal wedding at a home, or to an informal wedding at a church and then to an informal gathering of friends at home after the ceremony, this might be the form of our acceptance:

Dear Mary:

Indeed Tom and I are delighted to accept your very kind invitation to come to the United Church on Tuesday, the first of November, at four o'clock, to the marriage of Jane and Albert, and to come to your home afterward to say our good wishes and congratulations to them. You were most gracious to ask us, and we are so happy and proud to come. I hope that the wedding day will be a sunny one . . . I am sure that it will be a joyous one.

Dearest wishes from us both to you and all your dear family.

Contract Bridge

HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

Solving Playing Problems

Most hands dealt at the Bridge table are fairly simple, and problems presented either in bidding or play can generally be solved by a sound knowledge of bidding principles and an application of the generally accepted methods of play.

Mr. James Wilkins, of Dallas, Tex., recently received a prize of $100 for the manner in which he played the hand below. The bidding was unconventional and, of course, theoretically incorrect. The play, however, involving as it did a reverse squeeze and a Vienna Coup, was very fine.

West, Dealer.

	♠ 8654 ♡ J4 ◇ J10862 ♣ 82
	♠ J92 ♡ K3 ◇ K543 ♣ 9753

The bidding:

West	North	East	South
Pass	Pass	2♣	Pass
2♠	Pass	5 NT	Pass
6♠	Pass	7♠	Pass
Pass	Pass

North's Opening lead was the Knave of diamonds, which was won in Dummy with the Ace. The Ace of spades was then laid down, and the Declarer returned to his own hand by leading a small club to the Ten. The adverse trumps were then drawn, after which four more rounds of clubs were taken. The last round of clubs completely squeezed the South hand. He had played one diamond on the first lead, was forced to part with the second on the ninth play and the third on the tenth trick. When this discard took place, the diamond 9 was led from Dummy, ruffed with the Declarer's last trump, and the last 2 tricks were won with the Ace of hearts and the Queen of diamonds.

The Opening lead of a heart might have made a great difference in the play. However, the diamond is the natural Opening on the bidding and on the content of North's hand.

TODAY'S QUESTION

If North makes an insufficient bid and South (his partner) calls attention to it, can the opponents claim any penalty?

Answer: The fact that his partner calls attention to the error does not affect the opponents' rights. The rules have been violated and the penalty can still be claimed.

Madge Plans to Enlist the Aid of Lillian

"If we can save those first five days for which you have planned, only substituting the wonderful new car for the old one, and can limit your social appearances and sojourns at his friends' houses to one or two nights, will you be willing to spend the days that are left at his Palm Beach villa, as he has planned for you?"

Mary's answer was a dive for me, and an ecstatic hug that robbed me of speech and breath.

"Will I be willing?" she cried. "Just watch us! Eh, Noel? This is just like having your cake and eating it, too. Isn't that what they used to tell us when we were little? A Palm Beach villa, with the trimmings my prospective papa has outlined, won't be half bad, will it, old dear? And it will be pure velvet."

Mary's imagination was patently intrigued with the Palm Beach picture, if the original honeymoon plan could be saved, but I surmised that Noel was not so enthusiastic. However, his answer was prompt and asserting.

"I don't care what we do in the extra time," he said, "just so those five days can be saved to us."

"I'll do the very best I can," I told them. "Now go back into the living room and watch your chance to send Mrs. Underwood in here. Tell her I won't keep her five minutes, but I must see her that long as soon as possible."

LILLIAN APPEARS

They hurried away, and almost immediately afterward Lillian came into the study.

"I understand that there's a four alarm fire on," she said with a grin.

"Sit down," I said, pushing a chair over to her.

"Don't dare," she said, putting her elbows on the top of it and looking down at me over its back. "Old Phil whispered to me when he came back a few minutes ago that he wanted to flee the coop again in a little while, and to have me cover his retreat again.

"I gather that he came back because he feared your revered mother-in-law would miss him, but he needn't have worried. Your father is in splendid form, and he's trying his best to keep her so near the verge of defeat that she has no thought or eyes for anything else."

"What I have to tell you won't take very long," I said, and I quickly outlined my dilemma as to the honeymoon. She heard me in silence, and when I finished she pursed her lips and gave a long musical whistle.

"You are up a tall tree with the ladder jerked away," she said. "When Phil gets his mind 'sot' on any plan, he has old James Fitz James, with his 'Come one, come all, this rock shall fly from its firm base as soon as I,' lashed to a mast. And did I hear you aright, lady? Do you expect me to try to change the block of concrete he calls his mind?"

AGREES TO HELP

"I want you to help me talk to him, yes," I said steadily, knowing full well that she has to get a certain amount of nonsense out of her system before she really approaches a subject.

"All right," she said with sudden capitulation. "When?"

"Before he goes home."

"Which won't be until after midnight, from the looks of things at present," she said. "Mother Graham is determined to take him on at cribbage, after she finishes this series with your father, and the Lord He alone knows when that will be. You have to talk to him about Avis Arlen and the missing letter, too, haven't you?"

"Hush!" I cautioned, looking nervously around. "He may suspect something, but he has no ground for belief that I know anything of Miss Arlen's connection with the affair."

"Don't be too sure," she said. "That old fox has eyes in the back of his head and ears on his forehead. But this is beside the point. Get the missing letter over with, and then, just before Phil goes home, we'll give him some of your coffee. He'd sell his soul any time for a cup of good coffee. And then we'll tackle him.

"In the meantime, I'll try to think of some holy blackmail which I can add to your very efficient scheme; but don't be too hopeful, child, and—don't be too abrupt. Save your fire till you see the whites of his eyes. So long. I'll be seeing you!"

How to Keep Well

World Still Combatting Malaria

Few persons are aware of the valuable service rendered the world by the health organization of the League of Nations. This institution is making a world-wide effort to combat disease. It publishes advice and instructions necessary for the control of disease.

Dr. Copeland

An outstanding report of this health organization lies before me as I write. It describes recent advances made in the study of malaria.

No one can deny that at one time malaria was a menace to people all over the world. The disease has been known for many centuries. It was first described by Hippocrates, the father of medicine, in the fifth century B. C.

It was not until 1640 that any cure could be offered to sufferers from this disease. At that time it was discovered that when an extract made from the cinchona plant was given the victim of malaria great relief was obtained. More than two hundred years passed before it became known that the beneficial effect of the extract was due to the quinine found in the cinchona plant.

Later there followed a series of rapid and important discoveries concerning malarial fever. In 1880 a French army surgeon named Laveran discovered that malaria was caused by a parasite. He called it the "malaria plasmodium."

A few years later Sir Ronald Ross discovered that the disease could be transmitted by the bite of a certain variety of mosquito. The mosquito transmitted the disease only after biting a sufferer from malaria. The parasite developed in the mosquito and could be passed on to its next victim.

During the past three decades malarial fever has been controlled by the partial eradication of the mosquito, by the screening of homes in infected areas, and by proper hygienic measures and the isolation of malarial patients. It is true that the disease is not as common as in former years but malaria still continues to be a health problem which concerns the whole world.

Though quinine is extremely beneficial in malaria, medical science has not as yet discovered a drug that will kill the parasite. When this is accomplished relapses of the fever will be prevented and the disease will be more completely controlled.

As I have implied, the spread of malaria is checked by destroying mosquitoes in all malaria infested sections of the world. Continued draining, oiling and sprinkling of mosquito-breeding places are essential. With support of the excellent work now conducted by such organizations as the health organization of the League of Nations and our own health organizations, there will be complete eradication of this old and devastating disease of mankind.

Training a 'Problem' Child

By CONSTANCE CAMERON

When I hear complaints about "problem children" I am always exceedingly curious to see and know the mother. For this problem thing is often worded hindside before.

For instance, take little seven-year-old Anne. Anne is nervous and high-strung. Her mother says so. Anne is unusually quick mentally and has sailed along in school, skipping the latter part of the first grade, jumping the second entirely.

But in the third, highly conscious of "superiority" over the other children, acutely aware that she had done something unusual in getting along so rapidly in school, Anne met her Waterloo.

One day the teacher put some words on the blackboard which Anne didn't know. And when the teacher asked Anne to copy them along with their meaning, Anne suddenly felt very bad and had to go home. She has never been back.

She can't stand public schools, says the mother. She is an exceptional child and must be handled differently than other children. She has gone to a private school . . . where she'll probably stay until she meets some other obstacle she hasn't the courage to face.

But the fact that she hasn't that courage isn't entirely her fault. For the mother, right smack at the public school episode, refused to face a fact and run it to earth. Weakly, with a wistful feminine "you-know-how-it-is" stare of her big eyes, she sidestepped, using Anne's nervousness and "difference" as her excuse for not bestirring herself to find out what was the matter, what had really happened.

Children like Anne, who are blessed with a keen mentality, usually have as a natural accompaniment keen visibilities, which register their surroundings and all that the surroundings imply and hold in reserve for them with a deep intensity. This, in mothers who aren't discerning or brave enough to go to the root of things, is loosely cataloged as "nervousness." Their children become "problem" children.

As a matter of fact, these children are only "problem children" when they are treated as something apart and peculiar from the ordinary child. The mother who keeps her head, who outlines a routine and tactfully makes the child adhere to it; the mother who doesn't let the child get the idea that his so-called "difference" will get him any favors or indulgences won't have a problem child. She will have an exceedingly interesting, highly-sensitive, quick child who will be a happy companion to her.

Before you whine about your "problem child" take a look at yourself. For a great many people instinctively veer their eyes toward you rather than the child when this word "problem" creeps in.

Fashion Flashes

By ALICE ALDEN

A sporty idea is to vary a dressy coat of cloth by wearing a sports coat of fur on all but dressed-up occasions. A new model is in black pony. This long coat done on fitted lines has a triple shoulder capelet that makes it exceedingly attractive.

Why worry if you can't afford an expensive fur coat, when exquisite cloth coats with grand furs can be obtained at reasonable prices? There is a world of elegance in a new coat of bright red velvety woolen, with a Persian lamb fur collar applied from the dropped shoulder line to form side puff fur sleeves. There is also a big ruff collar of the fur.

Unusual Gifts for the Fair

To give something different to the church fair is the ambition of every woman. And that something different must be economical to make, for then it will mean that a greater quantity can be presented. Here are some ideas that meet both these requirements. Wouldn't it be a relief to see a gay patchwork basket in place of the usual work-bag? This is roomy—big enough for knitting or the family mending—and with the exception of the lining is made entirely of gay scraps. The Astor block on the pillow can be made of silk or cotton scraps, and so make quite a donation. The Fan block—a small edition of the Friendship Fan—lends itself both to a decoration on a pillow case and to a crib quilt. What, with so many proud owners of the Friendship Fan quilt, such pillowcases should be in demand at the fair. The crib quilt will make a most acceptable Christmas gift for some mother.

Pattern 578 comes to you with a block for the work bag, 13x15 inches, the pillowcase block, 10 inches, and the fan block, 4½ inches, with directions for making the articles shown.

Send 10c for this pattern to Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph Needlecraft Department, 82 Eighth avenue, New York City.

Household Hints

When cleaning brass first moisten your cloth with paraffin. This will result in a more brilliant and lasting polish.

When the drippings used for frying become brown add water and a pinch of bicarbonate of soda and put it in the oven to boil. When cool, pour off water and the drippings will be clear and white once more.

When boiled frosting becomes too hard after being removed from the fire, add a little cream or hot water and it will be smooth again. When mixing a recipe that calls for sour milk or cream and you have neither, put a tablespoonful of vinegar to each cup of milk and you'll get astonishingly similar results.

Torch Song

I miss you as trees miss a wild bird's song
When Winter comes and finds an empty nest
Within their aching arms, so fiercely pressed
Mute souvenir to prove Spring came along,
And brought the leaves for birds to play among.
That it was not a dream like all the rest
But something real and true, and heaven blest,
A precious promise of another throng.

I miss you as paths miss familiar feet,
And long to know the thrill of them again—
As wanderers miss a window in some street

You're gone, and yet a strange joy dulls the ache
—Ozzie Nelson.

Form of Criticism

The other 4:15 a. m. Leo Donnelly, whose reminiscing is never tedious, was in a Wilson Mizner story-telling mood. Leo recalled the time when Mizner's first play was greeted with sour notices by all the New York dramatic critics.

At Jack's that dawning, when all the morning papers revealed the disappointment of the reviewers, Leo asked the author what he had to say about the unanimous verdict.

Pointing to the demi-tasse before him Mizner flipped:

Oop!

And Lou Holtz recalled the time when he was swapping chatter with Mizner in front of a hotel and Mizner expectorated on the pavement. A policeman ankled up and barked:

"I could run you in for that—it's against the law!"

Opinion

Then there was the renowned wag's contempt for a clumsy pickpocket pal.

"That guy," he groaned, "couldn't stick his arm in the Hudson River without shoving over the Palisades!"

Alibi

Will Rogers was in a gay mood on the air the other Sunday night. He told of the numerous dinners being thrown for well-knowns in Hollywood.

The food at one of them wasn't very good, it appears, and Rogers complained about it this way:

"I didn't eat anything here tonight—so if my speech is lousy—we're even!"

In Other Words

A movie column in an Albany paper reports:

"Am I excited! One of my favorite books, 'Good Earth,' by Frank Buck, has been selected by Thalberg."

Then there's Pearl Buck's "Bring 'Em Back Alive."

There, Now!

Master Shawowsky passes along Jerry Lester's latest flippancy when a heckler bothered him during his act the other night. The pest was attired in one of those ill-fitting dress suits.

Inspecting his wrist-watch, Lester said:

"It is now 2:30 a. m., sir, and the store opens at 8:30—and if you don't get that suit back before 9 o'clock they'll charge you for an extra day!"

No Kiddin'?

Ide Gruber has come to the conclusion that the gal who has What It Takes — takes What He's Got!

Add Slanguage

Howard Snyder offers a few definitions in musicians' slang, to-wit: McGee means behind the times or small time . . . A lick is a solo interlude . . . Tin ear means no ear for melody or rhythm . . . A clinker is a sour note . . . Play it mean means make it hot or very good . . . Ride is to "go to town" . . . Jam is to play it hotter than that . . . Get off means "start to ride" . . . Stock means common arrangements; nothing special . . . Horn is a trumpet or saxophone. An outsider who refers to a trumpet as a cornet will always draw a sneer. Likewise, a violin is always a fiddle!

As If We Didn't Know

Counsel

In case you overlooked it—the late E. H. Sothern's legacy to stage aspirants is something to keep you from losing heart:

"Take any part, whether you like it or not. Welcome failure as priceless experience. But if you can't succeed and subsequently become a critic, cultivate justice."

By Way of Report

It happened in front of a cabaret the other night. Eddie Reeves' car had just let out its crew and the doorman asked the driver to back up so that another car could get out. As he was backing slowly, the doorman suddenly yelled "Stop, stop! There's a man down behind your car!" and it appeared that he was felled by the car in reverse.

The pedestrian was hastened to Polyclinic Hospital, where it was revealed he wasn't even bruised. He was sent home. An accident racket, of course—so thank us for the reminder.

Drama

The Rodeo which ended its run the other midnight brought temporary happiness to one little boy in this city. He held the winning ticket that won the pony—which almost every little boy and girl in town hoped they'd win.

The prize pony with saddle, etcetera, however, is stabled at a 58th St. place—where the winner can't pay for its keep. One of "the boys" of Broadway, we understand, is considering taking it off the winner's hands if his own little son can ride it.

The saddened little Spanish lad who "was so lucky" probably will never be happy again.

Overheard

Art Arthur and some of the columning fraternity were grouped in a corner of the Ha-Ha Club and a movie star, who had joined the party, was surrounded by autograph hunters. When they had gone Norman Anthony, the mag editor, teased the actor with:

"Well, Big Shot—tell me—how does it feel to be famous?"

"I'd rather," was the snapper, "be infamous—like you."

Incidentally

Alexander Woollcott remembers when a gushing girl approached the vast benignity of G. K. Chesterton and cried out:

"Oh, Mr. Chesterton, it must be wonderful to be so famous that, wherever you go, people know who you are!"

The great man shook his head.

"If they don't," he said despondently, "they ask."

Dances, Tunes In Pitt

By ZORA D. UNKOVICH

Body-twisting, red-headed Irene Vermillion, "The Pert Personality," gives the audience what it likes in her dancing act, part of a stage revue in the Pitt.

With her are the three Beverly sisters who contribute their tuneful bit to the act's popularity. Russell, Dell and Carr form another pulchritudinous team. They entertain with song and dance numbers.

"All in Fun" introduces the straight comedy contribution of William Seabury, Billy Morosco and company, who give you some different jokes.

Ward and Van, also gag characters, provide their comedy musically by means of a harp and violin.

An amusing incident occurred when Walter Walters gave his ventriloquial oddity "The Baby's Cry." So realistic was the performance that a baby in the audience began to cry in sympathy with the fake stage infant.

Dancing comedian Frank Farnum introduces to Pittsburgh terpsichorean enthusiasts the California glide, as well as exhibiting a number of other adeptly-executed novelty steps. Dancing agility, of a slightly different sort, is also presented by Thomas Melrose Conway.

In the screen feature Allan Dinehart is once again a musical comedy producer. This time Anita Page is the subject of his intense solicitation in "I Have Lived," a not-too-original story of the bad girl who turned good.

Gangster vs. Crooner In Penn

By GEORGE SEIBEL

Everybody is interested in gangsters and crooners, the two fairest flowers of our civilization, so everybody will want to see the Walter Winchell picture, "Broadway Thru a Keyhole," at which they can get a peep in the Penn.

Mr. Seibel

Paul Kelly is the noble gangster, Russ Columbo is the romantic crooner, Constance Cummings is the cute little girl from the country who gets a job in a night club run by Texas Guinan herself.

The noble gangster Paul Kelly buys the night club to make a star of the cute little girl Constance Cummings, but when the wicked rival gangsters shoot at him and make four holes in his best parlor mirror, he sends Connie off to Miami so she'll be in a safe place.

But Miami is infested with crooners, and next we see the cute little girl on the beach with Russ Columbo rubbing oil on her sunburned back.

How the crooner goes back to Broadway and faces the big bad wolf, who is turned by love into a little woolly lamb, is the climax of the story, which is filled with Winchell wisecracks, catchy tunes, zippy dances, fine photography and the voice of Walter Winchell broadcasting.

Gregory Ratoff is the best actor in the film, as stage manager of the floor show, and he's about the only person in the large cast that does any honest work or any other kind of work.

There's another very amusing and clever Mickey Mouse comedy called "Puppy Love," and a colored revue in which Ted Healy makes desperate and pathetic attempts to be funny. We cast our vote for Mickey.

The Art Society brought us another brilliant musician last night when Grete Stueckgold sang her recital in Carnegie Music Hall.

Everyone responded happily to this fine personality in spite of all the differences of opinion on vocal technique and the tempo of a few songs one heard during the promenade.

Mr. Lissfelt

There was a co-star, too, in the person of Kurt Ruhrseitz, the accompanist, who not only played entirely from memory these difficult songs, but played them with brilliance and care for the text.

The Stueckgold voice is a clear lyric soprano of extreme beauty in the middle register. She has an enormous breath capacity which is marvelous for its own sake, but which she uses for musical purposes, fortunately, and not for display.

Her deviation from pitch is lamentable in face of such excellent musicianship, for she is the type of singer who dares take liberties with all traditions and has the genius to say and prove that she is right.

The classic Handel and Haydn oratorio airs were a revelation, the "Jubal's Lyre" especially for the purity of its style. "Gretchen am Spinnrad" seemed too slow yet it was convincingly dramatized. The "Wiegenlied" won with its pianissimo.

Brahms' "Von Ewiger Liebe" she simplified and closer regard of the poem convinces us she was not far off the beaten track for its interpretation.

In Wolf's "Mignon's Lied" (and did you all ever hear Christine Miller Clemson sing it?—there never was better) her repose, especially in the last verse, was memorable, and the "Elfenlied" was archly recited and had to be repeated. Of the two Strauss songs, the "Staendchen" was better.

The closing scene from "Aida" was quite out of place on this program, and I wonder whether it was the singer's plan to include it. Her operatic style is broad and free but it shows without orchestral accompaniment whatever flaws she has to contend with.

As encores Dr. Arne's "Lass With the Delicate Air" which seems to have departed from our concert programs was again a welcome relief. "Early Morning" of Peters, and Bizet's "Pastorale" delighted the audience, and best of all was the rollicking "Im Gruenen" of Cchubert which but few singers dare nowadays.

All in a Day

By Mark Hellinger

Crusader

HE WAS a fine-looking figure, standing there in the midst of that small town crowd. He looked like a ham actor out of work; tall, superior, graying hair at the temples; fine, bright eyes; polished shoes, and a cane. He smiled perpetually; an unctuous, God-fearing smile; and he shook hands a lot.

They said goodby in turn; some timidly, others boldly.

"Lots of luck, Mr. Whimple. Lots of luck . . . Goodby, Oswald. Don't take any wooden nickels . . . So long, Mr. Whimple. We'll miss your wholesome words a lot . . . Goodby, Oswald. Give Satan an extra prod for me . . . Goodby . . . So long . . . Take care of yourself . . . Give my regards to Mrs. Evansbee. Tell her that Lulu was asking for her . . . Goodby . . . By."

The train was right on time. And, when it started out slowly from the little country station, it carried Oswald Whimple, on his way to New York to clean up the Gay White Way . . .

His was a grand mission in life. His was the task of taking the sordid, the gay, the dirty, the fun, the jokes, the laughs—out of Broadway. His was the job of dimming the mazdas; of saving the souls of men who have no souls. His was the task of straightening a crooked lane which isn't a lane but a state of mind; his was the job of killing joy, of taking the life out of life.

Such was what Oswald Whimple set out to do . . .

Mrs. Evansbee was radiant with happiness when he arrived. She took his bag and showed him to his room. And before dinner she introduced him to the other crusaders at her boarding house.

He listened to their stories of trivial success and gigantic failure with that smooth, unctuous smile. He heard them tell of how they managed to close a burlesque house after a solid year of effort; how they had banned a book for six months, only to boost the bootlegged sales to a tremendous height through publicity; how they saved the souls of wayward girls; how they browbeat politicians and inveigled a few misguided pastors into working with them.

Oswald Whimple heard them through, and then told them calmly that, within a month, he would have Broadway clean and pure, until it shone spotlessly. The young reformers brightened visibly, the older men shook their heads doubtfully.

No one could say that Oswald didn't do his level best. He appealed first to the theater managers, but stopped when one of them tried to book him in a Shakespearian revival. He tried publicity next. But no one seemed to pay any attention to it. Then he tried the License Commissioner and the Mayor. They talked of "thorough investigations" and ushered him to the door.

He was pretty disgusted for a while. That is, until he met Irma. She wasn't a reformer, but she taught a Sunday school class. Oswald liked Irma. She wasn't young, rather near his own age—but she was pert, almost militant.

They were married within two months. It was a happy union. Oswald took a little extra money out of his savings that week, and asked Mrs. Evansbee for a larger room.

Irma showed great enthusiasm for her husband's work. She didn't feel as he did, that cleaning up Broadway would be a cinch, but she was all for it.

A year went by. Oswald didn't like the idea of a year going by, that was one thing he couldn't stop. And then came the baby.

He was happy about the newcomer until one day Irma spoke to him rather abruptly.

"There's no two ways about it," she said. "You'll have to get a job, Oswald. There's practically nothing left in the bank, and the baby and I must have food. If you want to starve while you're cleaning up Broadway, that's your lookout. But we must eat, and you'll have to get work."

Oswald tried to think of a crushing answer. He couldn't. He wanted to tell her that, baby or no baby, Broadway had to be cleaned up; that it involved thousands of people, and that a baby was, after all, only one life.

But he didn't . . .

Oswald tried harder, and ever harder, to get a start on his life work. He preached on soapboxes in front of theaters until a Night Court judge warned him that, next time, he'd be held for observation at Bellevue Hospital. Then, and then only, did he listen to the pleas of Irma. Then, and then only, did he actually hunt for a job.

Within a week, Oswald Whimple was traudging from office to office. And within a month, he was getting up at five in the morning to apply at factory gates at six.

Sometimes, in his weary pilgrimages, he passed Broadway. At those times, the old fire of righteousness would surge in his breast; the call to arms was at hand; but behind it all was always the specter of Irma demanding to know when in hell he was going to work.

At last he could stand it no longer. He realized that he was broke, and that he must actually must get a job. Any job. And so, early one morning he crept down stairs, and dodged out quickly so that Mrs. Evansbee wouldn't see him.

He went straight to the Relief Bureau. And there he found that strange emotion—sympathy. A clerk listened to his tale of woe, and tabulated his name and address. Within three days, Oswald Whimple had a job.

Each day you see him, standing close to the curb, smiling nefariously to himself as he wishes the broom and can forward. He is happy, in a sense.

For he is doing daily what he came to New York to do—cleaning up Broadway . . .

Love and War In Warner

By HI HOWARD

War hatreds cross swords with a woman's love in the Warner's new tragedy film, "Ever in My Heart," starring Barbara Stanwyck. The play begins beautifully, against the pleasant and authentic background of small New England towns, but toward the end, it degenerates into another war picture.

Barbara is Mary Archer, in whose veins flows the blue blood of 300 years of proud New England ancestry. She is wooed by a handsome young German professor, Otto Kruger.

In spite of frowns of her home folks upon her "foreign" marriage, she is happy. But Otto becomes an American citizen the same day headlines herald the German invasion of Belgium. Allied propaganda fills the newspapers and soon Barbara and Otto find themselves ostracized—"huns!" That winter Otto can't find work; their small son dies.

In spite of her constant love for Otto, Barbara is forced to seek the shelter of her family. There, in the midst of a circle of Puritan ladies, war hatred seems to reach its peak when they turn off a phonograph playing "Holy Night" because it is a German song!

It is too bad that the picture doesn't end at this point. The first reels are beautiful and well acted; the last one or two hang a patched-up, artificial ending onto what would otherwise be a good show.

When America enters the war, Barbara becomes a canteen worker, following her brother and other admirer to France. A few flashes of old-time stock war film serve to create a war background until Barbara recognizes Otto. He is a spy, wearing an American uniform. In the end patriotism triumphs over her love. In a tragic move she prevents him from sending the Germans news of a big American advance.

Variety Goes Into Hands Of Help

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

Beginning with the Saturday midnight show, the Variety, burlesque house long under the management of George Jaffe, veteran showman, will be under new direction. Mr. Jaffe will step out at the close of tonight's performance, and the house will pass into the charge of four members of the stage crew, Philip Doyle, John Barnnigan, Harry Greenberger and Arthur Tucker.

Jaffe had decided to close the house, an action that would have removed to the ranks of the unemployed some 85 persons, including 18 chorus girls and 10 girl ushers, all of Pittsburgh, as well as company members, musicians and others. Doyle and his associates proposed that they be allowed to operate the house and keep its personnel at work, and Mr. Jaffe readily gave his consent.

"We believe the people of Pittsburgh want, and will support a burlesque theater," Doyle said. "Rather than have so many lose their jobs at this time, myself and the boys are going to take a chance and keep open. I hope the patrons of the theater will continue to give us their support."

"Hollywood on Parade," in two acts and 47 scenes, will be the initial offering under the new regime. It will open with a Sunday midnight show. Jean Williams, oriental dancer, new to Pittsburgh, will be among the principals. Frank McConville, Irish tenor and straight man; Eddie Kaplin, Fred Binder and Eddie Lorraye, comedians; Chic Hunter, Eddie Innis, Martha Patti, Wanda DeVon and Jean Rose will be in the cast.

Musical Film In Davis

"Too Much Harmony," musical comedy film, is having its second (but not consecutive) week in a downtown theater, now being the feature in the Davis, where it opened yesterday. Heading the cast are Bing Crosby, Judith Allen, Jack Oakie and Skeets Gallagher. It is a back-stage story in which Miss Allen, Oakie and Gallagher comprise a vaudeville team. The boys horn in when Miss Allen gets a chance to appear in a big musical production starring Crosby. She and Oakie are sweethearts, and when he sees that she cares for Crosby, Jack steps out of the way.

Frances Bans Work With Husband

By HARRISON CARROLL

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 4.—Despite the pressure from the studios, there is small chance of Frances Dee and Joel McCrea appearing in a picture together while their marriage is still fresh in the public mind.

Shortly before she left Hollywood on the location trip, which also was to be a wedding journey, Frances expressed her views plainly on this subject.

She said that two married stars should not play in the same picture because it keeps them together 24 hours of the day, whereas a separation during working hours is both normal and necessary to successful wedded bliss.

She also contended that making artificial love on the set takes the edge off the real thing.

Anyone who knows Frances will tell you that she is a strong-minded, level-headed girl and that, once she makes up her mind, she is hard to sway.

As a matter of fact, the star signed a contract with Fox partly with the idea of getting on a different lot from Joel.

They're telling a swell story about the visit of a certain young producer to a below-the-border gambling resort. After playing for a few minutes, the executive hit a number in roulette and asked the croupier for a pencil and paper to figure up his winnings. The croupier burned but gave it to him. Shortly afterwards, the producer hit another number and again asked for the pencil. This was too much for the croupier.

"What's the matter?" he asked. "Can't you add."

Without looking up from his figuring, the executive squelched:

"No. If I could, I'd still be a bookkeeper.

SPORT COMMENT

By James J. Long

Notre Dame Not Hopeless.•Mefort Building Up Hiram. May Make Strong Finish. Another Going-Home Play. Panthers Among Boosters. Dundees Set Ring Record.

SOME LATE UPSETS BY IRISH PREDICTED

Isn't there a possibility that some of football's best minds may have been slightly premature in pronouncing Notre Dame's season a total wreck because of a record that showed only one victory and 12 points in the first four games? And wouldn't it be just like the uncertain gridiron sport if Hunk Anderson and his Irish warriors were to confound their critics by pulling a big form reversal during the remainder of the so far disastrous campaign? Stranger things have happened in the swineskin pastime, and the team that has been set down as the year's all-America disappointment may prove to be anything else before it has finished with Navy, Purdue, Northwestern, Southern California and Army. Don't list any of those opponents as sure winners over the South Benders. There may be one or two big surprises around the corner.

Don Elser

Members of the Pitt squad are among those who refuse to believe that the Irish are hopeless. The Panthers say they sensed toward the close of last Saturday's game that Anderson's machine was beginning to function, with a consequent boom in spirit; they see great possibilities for Don Elser and Andy Pilney, the sophomore backs, who are improving with the added experience gained in each succeeding game; and they look for a brilliant finish by Ray Brancheau and other seniors, in addition to Reyman Bonar, junior quarterback.

BELIEVE IRISH MAY WIN FOUR OUT OF FIVE

The Pitt players were confidently awaiting the outcome of Notre Dame's meeting with Navy in Baltimore today to bear them out in the statement that the Irish are on the upgrade. Jock Sutherland's men predicted that Notre Dame would get "organized" in the Navy game, never having been held scoreless three times in succession, and some of them made bold to express the belief that Anderson's gridders would upset the dope to the extent of winning four of their remaining five contests, starting this afternoon.

The Panthers recall that the Irish, after fighting vainly for three periods against one of Sutherland's best defensive lines, suddenly began to click in the final quarter and outgained Pitt during that time, stopping the powerful Panther attack on their center, and in turn spreading the Pitt defense. Anderson uncovered in Reyman Bonar, from Bellaire, O., that nursery of collegiate gridders, a quarterback who looked mighty good to the locals, and they were also impressed by the work of Elser, Pilney, Krause and Wunsch. The Panthers continue to be particularly loud in their praises of Brancheau. They rank him and George Sauer, of Nebraska, as the best two defensive backs to face them in several years. Pitt's voice is added strongly to the warning not to sell Notre Dame short.

FORMER TECH STAR DELIVERS AS COACH

When the season's neat coaching jobs in football are being discussed, the one performed by a former Carnegie Tech star is not to be overlooked. C. J. (Ski) Mefort, ex-Tartan end, and for a time assistant coach at Case, has given Hiram (O.) College a real team after that school's long stay in the rut. Mefort gets full credit from Ohio critics for the changed atmosphere and new spirit around Hiram. He didn't get a lot of extra fine new material to work with; he just went in and chased away an old defeat complex, firing his players with a winning urge, to back up the sound football he taught them.

Ski Mefort

Last year the former Plaid wingman took a Hiram team that had lost 22 games in succession and coached it to its first victory since 1929, a triumph over Kent State. This fall his eleven has lost only to Wooster, beating Ohio Northern and Capital and tying with Bethany and Kent. The team's total of 42 points to date is seven times as great as that of last season, when the count was a mere six. Considerable progress for a school that has only three dozen athletes.

PURDUE BEATS FOES WITH 'PERFECT PLAY'

In meeting the powerful Purdue team in Lafayette, Ind., today, Carnegie Tech was warned to be on the lookout for a "perfect play" which the Boilermakers worked from 50 to 60 yards out against Ohio University, Chicago and Wisconsin. Noble Kizer has centered his offense to a point midway between Michigan's attack and Notre Dame's "perfect play" of the days of Elder and Schwartz.

Purdue has been kicking on second downs to get the ball in a favorable position. Then, after Purvis and Hecker have softened up the enemy line, Jim Carter is inserted for the touchdown play. A master ball carrier is required, and perfect blocks by at least four men are vital to the execution of the stroke. When Purvis' plunges have drawn in the secondary to take part in the stopping of the wriggly back, Carter is dropped into a neat spot, and, if all goes well, he scores.

TWO BOXING CHAMPIONS IN ONE FAMILY

Samuel and Vincent Lazzaro, better known as Joe and Vince Dundee, have set a new record in the fight game by bringing two championships into one family. The older brother formerly held the welterweight title, and Vince this week took the middleweight crown from Lou Brouillard. The closest approach to this was made by the Sullivan twins. Mike won the welterweight championship from Honey Mellody in 1907, and a year later Jack was one of the claimants of the middleweight honors until Stanley Ketchel won general recognition as champion by defeating him.

Vince Dundee

Those who insist that Teddy Yarosz kicked away the middleweight championship in turning down the match with Brouillard contended at the time the bout was proposed and rejected, before being given to Dundee, that the Monaca boxer was making a mistake. They figured the 12½ per cent, which amounted to $1,637, was reasonable pay for a chance to win a championship, and that the opportunity was a promising one in view of the possibility that Brouillard might have trouble making the weight without weakening himself. Brouillard himself admits indirectly that he hardly could have hoped to escape defeat if he had met Yarosz, twice proved superior to Dundee, saying he was affected to such an extent in taking off 14 pounds that he realized two days before the fight, when it was too late to back out, that he could not win. Lou frankly admits he is no longer a middleweight, and he intends to go after light-heavyweight laurels, which Maxie Rosenbloom, as had been generally expected, retained last night by winning a 15-round decision over Mickey Walker in New York.

TARTANS CLASH WITH RUGGED PURDUE FOE

LAFAYETTE, Ind., Nov. 4.—Purdue put one of the most famous records in modern football on the line here today for a Carnegie Tech eleven to shoot at. Not in a run of 44 games has a Purdue eleven failed to score at least one touchdown. Not in a straight run of 18 games has a Purdue eleven tasted defeat.

At Ross-Ade Stadium, before a crowd that is expected to approach the 30,000 mark, the Boilermakers and Tartans will clash this afternoon as the main feature of Purdue's annual homecoming festivities. Each team has won three games and tied one, but Carnegie will send into battle a team that has not yet been scored upon this season.

PLAID POPULAR FOE

The victory of the Skibos over Notre Dame provided the impetus which is pushing many of the spectators into the stadium today, for it will give the dopesters some chance to analyze Purdue's opportunities in the coming Indiana civil war, when the Boilermakers and Notre Dame clash.

Purdue will depend upon the most versatile backfield in the game today. She still has Fred Hecker, who defeated Carnegie Tech in Pittsburgh two years ago with a 65-yard touchdown run, and Paul Pardonner, one of the greatest drop kickers the modern game has known. In support Purdue has Duane Purvis, the big star of this year's team; Jim Carter, Butch Keegan, Doxie Moore, and a host of lesser lights.

LIB LEWIS DOUBTFUL

Completing his practice at the Logansport, Ind., high school field yesterday afternoon, Coach Howard Harpster expressed fears that his sensational end, Lib Lewis, would not be able to play. He intends to start George Goodridge at right end, but is hopeful that Lewis will be able to see some action. The only other change contemplated in the Tartan lineup was the substitution of Joe Mihm for Johnny Sayles at fullback.

WALKER BEATEN BY ROSENBLOOM

NEW YORK, Nov. 4.—(AP.)—After 15 long years of toiling in the battle pits, Mickey Walker, the toy bulldog from Rumson, N. J., appeared to be very close to the finish of his fighting career today. Mickey not only failed to lift the light-heavyweight crown from the head of Maxey Rosenbloom in their 15-round match at Madison Square Garden last night but he showed more than ever the toll that time has taken. It was the second straight defeat for the one-time ruler of the welterweight and middleweight classes. A few months ago he took a decisive trimming from Lou Brouillard, who lost the middleweight title to Vince Dundee last Monday.

Walker, perhaps seeing oblivion ahead if he lost, did his best all evening to catch up with the shifty Rosenbloom and tag him with a winning wallop, but outside of a couple of good clouts in the first two rounds, a slashing blow that cut the champion's cheek in the eighth and a solid body smash in the eleventh, he got nowhere at all. His best was just to charge ahead in occasional rallies while Rosenbloom danced around him, flicking in blows whenever he felt like it.

The referee and two judges couldn't agree very well on calling the rounds, Referee Eddie Forbes awarding Walker nine rounds and the judges, Charley Lynch and Jim Buckley giving Rosenbloom 11 of the 15 heats.

Rosenbloom, who may occasionally drop a decision in one of his numerous non-title fights, but always reaches the peak when his crown is on the block, rode the crest of the victory wave all the way.

The crowd of 10,000, most of them cheering for an old favorite, saw few traces of the Walker who won the middleweight title from Jack Britton in 1922. The old spirit was still there, but the speed and stamina were missing.

Moose Seeks Foe For Jack Dalcherone

The Moose Temple boxing card for next Monday night is complete with the exception of an opponent for Jack Dalcherone, of Springdale, in the opening bout.

Mose Butch and Nat Litfin are in the 10-round windup, and Joey Speigal, of Uniontown, will box Anson Green, Negro, of Homestead, in thes ix-round semi-final, with Don Asto and Steve Senich in the second number.

Bep Van Klaveran has accepted terms to box Harry Dublinsky in the main bout of the reopening show at the Arena, next Friday night. Joey Bazzone will be one of the principals in the six-round semi-final.

SHADY SIDE COMPETES

The Shady Side Academy football and soccer teams are in Cleveland today where they will tackle the corresponding clubs of the University School. Twenty-five gridders and 20 kickers made up the party which invaded the Ohio city.

PANTHER ACES SET TO STOP COLONELS

By HARRY KECK
Sports Editor.

Pittsburgh gets its first peek at the Praying Colonels, of Centre College, when the Kentuckians engage the Pitt Panther footballers on the Stadium gridiron at 2 o'clock this afternoon.

This is not as famous a Centre team as that which boasted Bo McMillin, Sully Montgomery, Red Weaver, Red Roberts and others of note, but it is plenty good enough. It outplayed Boston College until the final minute, when it lost, 6-0, and last week it defeated Xavier College, which has given both Carnegie Tech and W. & J. hard fights.

JOCK 'PLAYS SAME'

Taking no chances, Coach Jock Sutherland, of the Panthers, indicated today he will start his first team and see what happens. If the conquerors of Notre Dame get off out in front, the reserves will get their chance to flash their stuff. It was Jock's first thought to start the reserves and use the regulars only sparingly, but he has reason to believe that Centre is not to be trifled with.

The Kentuckians arrived in Pittsburgh yesterday morning and worked out on the Pitt practice field before the Panthers got in their final session. Davis and Elkins, en route to Beaver Falls to play Geneva today, also drilled on the Pitt field.

Coach Kubale, himself a former Centre star, announced a change in his lineup whereby Calloway Moody will start at left halfback in place of Earl Bartlett, the punting ace, who will move to fullback, replacing Dallas Long.

INVADERS REAL THREAT

The visitors are big and heavy, and this may be one of the reasons Coach Sutherland will not risk his less experienced players against them at the opening kickoff.

A forward passing combination from Quarterback Hamilton to Halfback Eline caused Xavier considerable trouble and Pitt will be on its guard against it today. Hamilton is touted as the best quarterback at Centre since McMillin. Barksdale, the Centre left end, was booting placements of 40 yards and better in practice yesterday and will be dangerous any time the visitors get on the Pitt side of the field.

Boy Scouts to the number of possibly 15,000 are expected to see today's game as guests of the University of Pittsburgh.

Zivic Brothers Win Coast Bouts

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 3.—(AP.)—Fritzie and Eddie Zivic, of Pittsburgh, brothers of Jack and Pete Zivic, widely known pugilists of a few years ago, had little trouble here tonight in defeating four-round match opponents in their first San Francisco appearances.

Eddie Zivic, weighing in at 133 pounds, gave away five pounds to Tommy Hill, of Portland, Ore., and won a decision without difficulty. The Pittsburgh boy handed his heavier rival a good boxing lesson. He planted fast lefts to Hill's face throughout the contest.

Fritzie Zivic, at 133½ pounds, spotted Gus Vegas, tough Hayward, Cal., Portuguese, seven and one-half pounds and won by a technical knockout in the second round. Fritzie battered the Portuguese around the ring during the first round and kept up the barrage of blows in the second.

CHARLEY BARKSDALE, END, HERE WITH CENTRE COLLEGE

Somebody put up a $10 bet for the Centre College football player who can raise the heaviest beard before the homecoming game with Washington and Lee, two weeks from today, and Barksdale, a regular player, has this head start toward success. He says he "needs the money." This is a Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph picture.

Amateur Hockey Loop Here Planned

Steve Cox, prominent in local amateur sports circles for several years, is to make an effort to organize an amateur hockey league. Cox is associated in the venture with the Harris Amusement Company, operator of Duquesne Garden, where it is proposed to play the games.

An amateur league and a scholastic league have been in operation here in recent seasons. It is proposed to recruit many of the players for the new league from these former organizations. Former Pittsburgh pro players will serve as coaches.

Fight Results

At Syracuse, N. Y.—Joe Moran defeated Hans Mueller, 6 rounds; Connie Josenio defeated Alfie Williams, 6 rounds.

At Philadelphia—Eddie Cool defeated Young Joe Firpo, 10 rounds; Harry Decker defeated Mike Marshall, 8 rounds; Bill Hendrie defeated Joe Camilla, 6 rounds; Frankie Neff and Hennie Wolfe drew, 6 rounds; Stan Compton defeated Frankie Sims, 6 rounds.

RED AND BLACK AIMS TO SNAP LAYDEN STRING

By JESS CARVER,
Staff Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, Pa., Nov. 4.—Invading gridiron territory which ever has been jealously and valiantly defended, Duquesne University's highly-geared football machine tests its drive against Washington and Jefferson's stalwart young men here today in one of the outstanding contests of the East.

The game is the third modern clash between the Pittsburgh Irish and the Presidents, and if successful from a Duquesne standpoint, will mark the third triumph over the Red and Black and the eighth consecutive victory of what, so far at least, has been the Duke's most successful and impressive campaign.

Waynesburg, West Virginia Wesleyan, West Virginia, Bucknell, Western Maryland, Detroit and Westminster have fallen before the powerful Dukes to date. Wash-Jeff has beaten Xavier, of Cincinnati, Waynesburg (the latter by almost the same margin as did the Dukes), and have lost to Pitt and Detroit, with a scoreless deadlock with Carnegie Tech thrown in for good measure.

DUKES FAVORITES

Despite the fact the Dukes rule the first choice today, Wash-Jeff may be counted upon for a strong defensive battle, a battle that, in the eyes of many critics, will be formidable enough to confound the best laid plans of attack of the Dukes. On the other hand, Duquesne's defense will have to be far less sturdy than it has been in any game to date if the W. & J. offense is to accomplish much in the way of ground-gaining, much less scoring.

In five games so far, the Presidents have scored only 27 points, but have held their opponents to 30. The Dukes have rolled up 129 points in seven games against 13 for their adversaries.

Aside from having to perform for the first time this fall in the daytime on a strange field, the Dukes have everything in their favor today. They have more and better reserves, a stronger attack and figure to have an edge in bulk and speed.

And what is more important, the Pittsburghers will enter the contest in the well known pink—at the peak of physical condition. After taking somewhat of a battering in the game with Detroit two weeks ago, the Dukes were able to take it comparatively easy against impotent Westminster last week, and the practice drills this week were designed to put the lads squarely on edge.

TEAM IN TRIM

Coach Elmer Layden will start his regulars today. Capt. Krankota and Jerry Baker will be at the flanks, with Niccolai and Sinko at the tackles and Weinberg and Rado at the guards. The accomplished Ben Ciccone will be over the ball at center, DeLuca and Art Strutt will be at the halves and Silvio Zaninelli, hard-hitting Italian, at fullback. Joe Cutrona appears to be the quarterback choice, although Frank DeCoster is ready to go and Joe Gates may be an eleventh-hour selection.

Hank Day, Wash-Jeff's canny mentor, with fewer players with which to work, and with two of his backfield stars, Wilson and King, more or less on the doubtful list, due to injuries received early in the campaign, selected a

NEW CASTLE, KEN HIGH BATTLE FOR LEAD

All-America Rating Won By Sebastian

By CHRISTY WALSH,

The first week in November finds many new names knocking at the door of All-America fame. From the Rocky Mountains, from the Pacific slope, from the Eastern seaboard and from down in Dixie, the telegraph wires bring recommendations on star performers whose names were unsung a few weeks back.

All America Ratings

A Notre Dame player breaks through—for the first time this year—proving that a losing team need not deprive a truly outstanding player of proper recognition. Including this week's ratings, a total of 48 players, representing 40 colleges, have been cited for excellent performance.

The following will receive Cards of Merit from the All-America Board of Football for what they did under fire last Saturday afternoon.

1—SEBASTIAN, Pittsburgh. Gaining 117 yards in 14 attempts, this big ball carrier never was stopped for less than four yards on any run. He went 75 yards to a touchdown on one occasion and his defensive work halted the Notre Dame offense.

2—DEVORE, Notre Dame. In the face of a superior opponent, this fighting end played 54 minutes of fierce and unyielding football. Ray Hunt, South Bend News-Times, rates Devore All-America because he never permitted Pittsburgh to gain one yard around his end and his playing was a consolation to Notre Dame even in defeat.

3—WARBURTON, Southern California. In the words of his own coach, Howard Jones, this diminutive Trojan quarterback "won it, saved it and nearly lost it." In the worst scare his undefeated teammates have known in three years, Warburton rose to the height of fame by running 60 yards in the final quarter and scoring six points to win the game.

4—BORDEN, Fordham. In there for the entire 60 minutes of the hardest game seen in the East this year, this fine end distinguished himself as a defensive star in a great defensive deadlock. Inside or outside of his position it made no difference—Borden held the mighty Alabama backs in deadly check.

5—LUND, Minnesota. Gaining 116 yards against powerful Iowa, Lund is rated for All-America honors by Lou McKenna, St. Paul Pioneer Press. His slashing at the tackles, his skirting of the ends, his quick-kicking and his punting all counted heavily in the victory score.

6—KABEALO, Ohio State. This sophomore fullback, says Edgar Munzel, Chicago Herald and Examiner, contributed his share to victory by averaging four yards every time he packed the ball by his grand work in the secondary defense and by his amazing spirals, which averaged 41 yards to the kick.

7—BUCKLER, Army. Although his teammates took all the touchdown honors—the hard running, the great passing and the amazing punting of this West Point cadet made him the real star of the game. Helped by wind and roll, one of his booming kicks went 90 yards down the field.

8—BARCLAY, North Carolina. Bill Alexander, his rival coach and member of the All-America Board, says: "Barclay divines where plays will strike better than any backer-up I have seen in years." Against Georgia Tech this agile guard never was taken out by a single blocker.

9—DAVIES, Utah. This Rocky Mountain end and captain rates All-America according to Frank Baker, Salt Lake Telegram, because his leadership and spectacular pass receiving lead to both winning touchdowns in the final half of a hard-fought contest.

10—CLARK, Dartmouth. An alert mind and flying heels enabled this Dartmouth player to run 55 yards around the Harvard flank and tie the score in the closing minutes of a game that seemed concluded. S. J. Mahoney, Boston Record, rates him All-America.

DOUBLE A GRID LEADERS MEET IN BIG GAME

By JULIUS LEVIN

First place in the double A division of the Western Pennsylvania Interscholastic Athletic League will be at stake this afternoon when New Castle, undefeated in 18 successive games, and New Kensington battle at New Kensington.

The two teams are tied for first place in the class AA race with three victories and no defeats.

Jeannette and Greensburg, also undefeated and untied in the double A group, each scoring two triumphs, likewise meet class opponents today, Jeannette engaging an old rival in Norwin, while Greensburg is the attraction at McKeesport.

NEW CASTLE FAVORED

New Castle, suffering its last setback in the final game of the 1931 season, is a favorite to defeat Carl Glock's gridders, but judging from reports of fans who have seen the New Kensington team in action this season, the Scarlet Hurricane is in for a busy afternoon.

New Castle's three league victories so far include a 14-6 decision over Charleroi, a 13-0 triumph over Washington, and a 26-7 victory over Turtle Creek Union. New Kensington defeated Norwin, 20-6, Wilkinsburg, 20-0, and McKeesport, 13-6. While New Castle shows a perfect record for the season, New Kensington was defeated in a non-league fray by Tarentum, 12-7.

JEANNETTE UNBEATEN

Like New Castle, Jeannette risks an impressive winning streak in its battle with Norwin. Markley Barnes' team has not suffered defeat in 16 successive games. The Jeannette team won its last game in 1931, nine straight last season and so far this season shows six straight victories.

Scoring a decisive victory over the favored Carrick High team, South Hills High upset the grid dope among the city schools yesterday. With Whitey Fowle in a feature role, the South Hills eleven ran wild as it recorded four touchdowns and four successful tries for the extra point. The score was 28 to 0.

ROBERTS STARS

Largely on account of the brilliance of Abner Roberts, clever Negro halfback, Peabody High was able to land a 12-7 success over the Westinghouse High team. Roberts broke away in the last period to score two touchdowns, which were sufficient to put his team across.

A thrilling fight between South High and Taylor Allderdice culminated in a 6-to-0 victory for the South stars. Grad threw a forward pass to Czlapinski in the second period, the fleet end running 50 yards for the touchdown after making the catch.

SCHENLEY DOWNS FIFTH

Jack Quailey, son of the late Dr. Charles Quailey, star halfback of Pitt, followed in his dad's steps as Schenley scored a convincing victory over Fifth Avenue High. Jack broke loose for a 90-yard run in the second period, and he scored another of the four touchdowns made by the Schenley stars. The score was 25 to 6. It marked the first time in five years Fifth had scored a point.

Scott High triumphed over Duquesne High as the North Bradock lads registered their seventh consecutive victory. The score was 13-0. The contest concluded Scott's competition in the class A division of the W. P. I. A. L. Duquesne proved worthy of Scott's steel through three gruelling periods, but the superior class of the victors was borne out in the last quarter when Scott broke through for two touchdowns. The defeat eliminated Duquesne from the title race.

EAST PITTSBURGH WINS

East Pittsburgh High kept its undefeated slate clean and moved closer to a class B championship by winning decisively over Edgewood High. The score was 17 to 0. Johnny Coleman's hustlers ran over touchdowns in the first and second quarters and Hoffman booted the ball between the uprights for a field goal in the last period.

Hurst High was upset, 13-0, by the smooth Mt. Pleasant team. Monongahela High won its seventh straight contest by trimming Masontown, 38-0; Redstone had little trouble in defeating German, 25-0. Mt. Lebanon trimmed Washington, 7-0; Trinity bowed to Canonsburg, 6-0; Carnegie and Langley staged a scoreless tie, as did Avalon and Aspinwall; Arnold knocked off Harbrack, 7-0; Ben Avon defeated Millvale, 13-6; Burgettstown walloped Cecil, 25-0, and McKees Rocks threw back Crafton, 20-0.

RED AND BLACK MEETS DUKES

At the ends, Ercius and Headley, two fine all-round performers, will get the call. Dalrymple and Melenyzer will go at the tackles and Carl Bubenheim and Massock at the guards, with Capt. Bertie Gray at center.

In the backfield, Holland will run the team from quarterback, Bob Fife and Malcolm will be at the halves and big Bob King, the lad who starred against Pitt and has been more or less hors de combat since, is to get the nod at fullback.

RECORD CROWD ASSURED

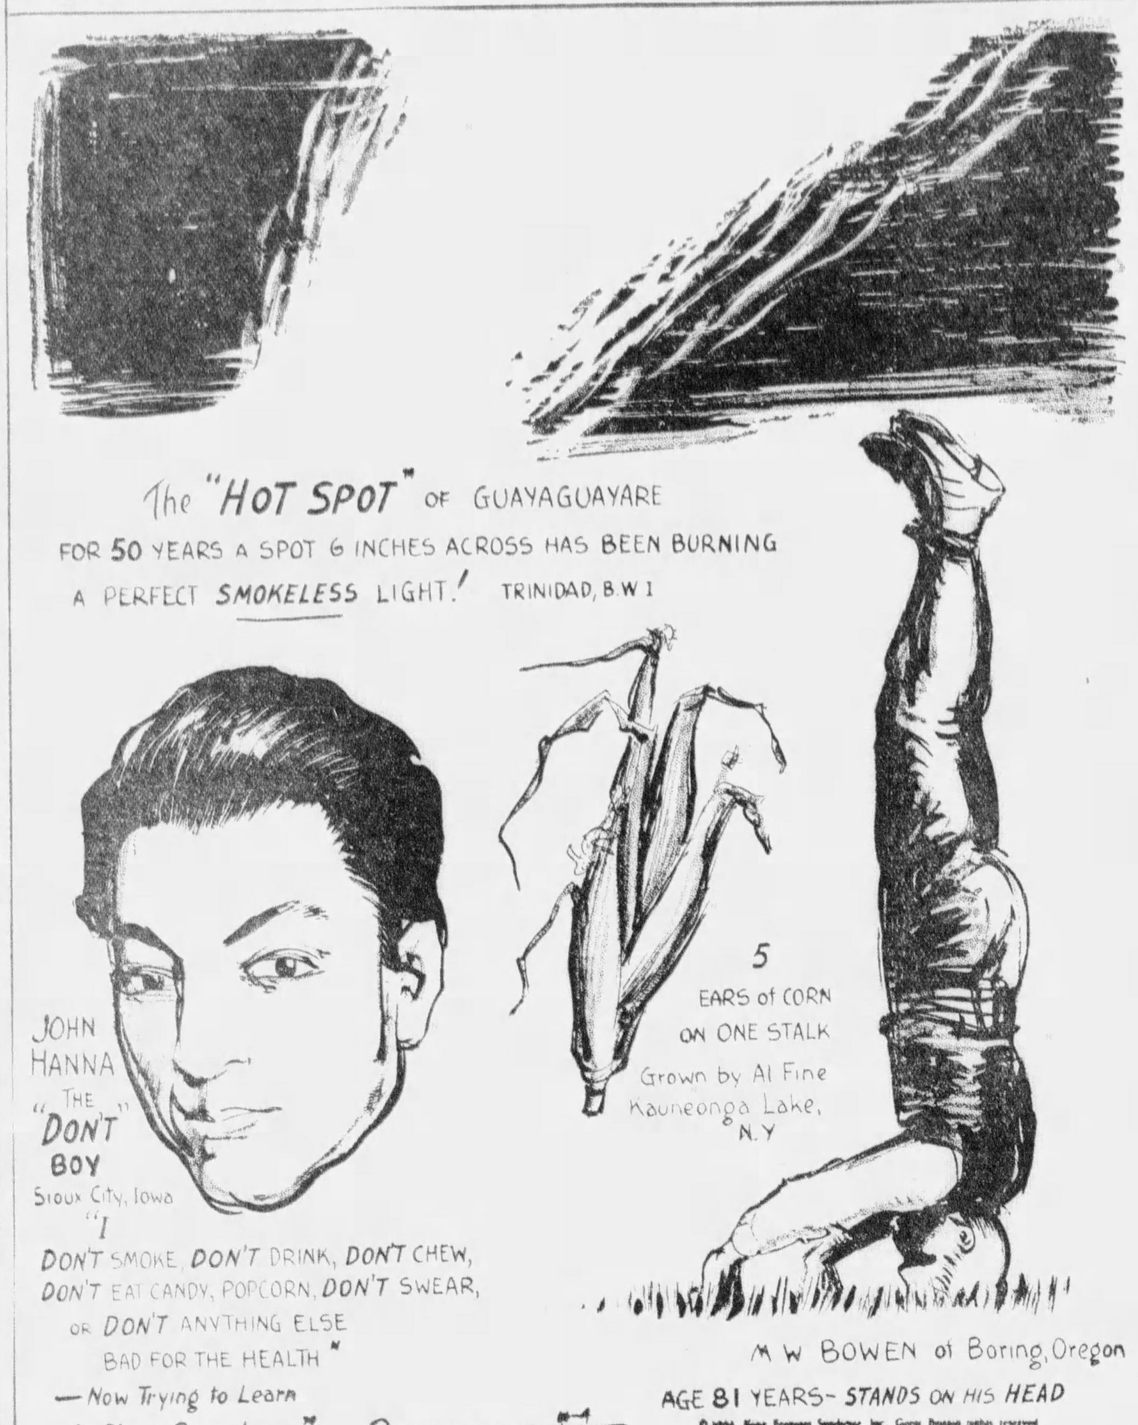
A record crowd for the local scene is assured. The reserved seat supply was exhausted as early as Thursday. Extra seats have been built, boosting the capacity of the park to close to 15,000, which is quite a few thousand more than ever saw a contest here in the past.

The contest marks the Presidents' Homecoming Day, and Red and Black alumni from all parts of the country have returned for the celebration which will consist of [illegible] and play will be climaxed after the game by [illegible] a Washington victory.

They never have been beaten in the terms of [illegible] and they are not starting today. They are out to win.

Believe It Or Not (Reg. by U. S. Patent Office) By Ripley

(On request, sent with stamped addressed envelope, Ripley will send proofs and details of anything depicted by him in these cartoons.)



EXPLANATIONS OF RIPLEY'S CARTOONS OF YESTERDAY: THE GREATEST GAME BUTCHERS IN HISTORY—Johann Georg I (1585-1656) and his son Johann Georg II (1613-1680) were Electors (rulers of Saxony). Their reigns were quite undistinguished, except that they established an all-time record in game slaughter, having killed a total of 225,761 heads between them. In their capacity as Electors they also occupied the office of Lords High Masters of the Chase of the German Empire, which gave them access to all the forests and game preserves of the Reich. The elder Johann Georg was such a zealous huntsman that he once refused the crown of Bohemia, for the reason that Bohemian game seemed to him inferior to that of his own country. A LEGLESS RACE—This bizarre contest took place at the Carthage Fair, in 1867. The two contestants, who had lost their legs, were powerfully-built men. The winner, Isaac Reynolds, made the mile circuit in 15 minutes, 15 seconds, beating William Quillan, his opponent, by two minutes.

SPORT VIGNETTES

Paul G. Sullivan and Oscar Adams are working with Herb McGee in broadcasting the W. & J.-Duquesne football game from Little Washington today . . . Paul is the tennis expert of the Sun-Telegraph, and a graduate of Duquesne, while Adams is a W. & J. alumnus who laid the foundation for his football education as mascot for the old Pitt Panthers in the early days of Pop Warner as coach here . . . After the Dukes' game is over, WCAE will tune in on the chain broadcast of Carnegie Tech's game with Purdue at Lafayette, Ind.

Arthur Hyatt, brother of Charley Hyatt, of Pitt basketball fame, is back from Tulsa, Okla., where he brushed up his game with Charley and the latter's Tulsa Oilers . . . He will assist Coach Gross at Schenley High School, where he was captain of the passers and where a younger brother, Manny, now is coming along in the sport.

The Weinberg brothers, of Mt. Pleasant, are playing as members of undefeated college and high school elevens today . . . Henry is at right guard for the Dukes against W. & J., and Izzy at tackle for Ramsey High School, of Mt. Pleasant, against Hurst High . . . Phil Goldstein, the former boxer, is contemplating matrimony . . . And his amateur middleweight star, Al Quail, with 40 straight wins to his credit, is ready to turn pro as soon as the fight game revives sufficiently to permit him to keep as busy as a pro as he has been as an amateur.

That was quite a constructive suggestion made by John Jay Burke in his talk with the Trained Seals over WCAE the other night, when he proposed a sports director for the city parks such as we have in W. S. Haddock for the county parks. . . . It is his thought that only by efficient management can the parks' sports facilities be put to the fullest possible use by the people, to whom they belong. . . . Detroit University beat W. & J., 14-0, and the Dukes took Detroit by the same score, and today the Dukes and W. & J. meet. . . . So what?—HARRY KECK.

Handball Players Begin Schedule

Play in the City Handball League will get under way today.

The entries will be divided into two groups, A and B. In the first group will be Keystone A. C., P. A. A., Y. M. C. A., Y. M. H. A., and in the second division will be Keystone A. C., P. A. A., Y. M. C. A., Y. M. H. A. and Westinghouse Club.

Only one game is scheduled today, that between Y. M. C. A. and Y. M. H. A., at the latter's courts.

Class A will swing into action tomorrow with Keystone at P. A. A. and Y. M. C. A. at Y. M. H. A. In Class B tomorrow P. A. A. plays at Keystone A. C.

Horse Drugging Doomed, Narcotics Chief Says

By FRANK G. MENKE
(Copyright, 1933, by Universal Service, Inc.)

NEW YORK, Nov. 4.—"Wholesale drugging of race horses will be a thing of the past on major race tracks in 1934."

So declared Harry J. Anslinger, Commissioner of Narcotics, today. He added:

"Our department now has the co-operation of the racing officials. They all will work with us to abolish the evil.

"Joseph E. Widener will install a salivarium at his Hialeah track in Miami, and the strictest possible supervision will govern there.

"The California Racing Commission has declared that it will insist upon the construction of receiving barns at all tracks, where the horses must be placed at least one hour before each race, and will be under care of a veterinarian and not in control of their trainers.

"Furthermore, California will use the saliva test on all horses where officials have reason to believe that the horse has been stimulated with narcotic drugs.

SUPPORT PROMISED

"The Maryland Racing Commission has promised the heartiest possible support next season. I believe they will adopt the saliva test, and I know that beginning next spring, every precaution will be taken against owners or trainers doping their animals."

Contnuing, Commissioner Anslinger said:

"I have been in communication with many other powers in the turf world and we are working out plans which we are certain will smash the evil.

"The big drive to banish narcotics from race tracks really gets under way early next year, and this is a fight that will be won.

"Our men are still operating. They have reported to me that since the light of publicity has been shed upon the doping practice, there has been a tremendous decrease in the 'doctoring' of horses. Owners realize that they have the choice of running their horses 'cold,' as the expression goes, or of taking a chance of going to jail on the charge of illegal possession of narcotics.

OFFENDERS KNOWN

"Our department had information which will prove of immense value in our fight next season. We know the names of practically every horseman who 'doctors' his runners, and we know the names of more than 500 horses which we have reason to believe have been doped. This information was gained by our agents in more than a year of quiet investigations at almost 20 different race tracks."

Owners are co-operating in the work of stamping out the evil, Anslinger revealed. He added:

"Furthermore, we have letters from honorable and reputable horse owners who, disgusted because of the frightful custom of doping horses, have reported to us the names of owners and trainers who have drugged their horses and made no secret about it in the past.

"We'll know right where to go next season. We'll know what barns and what horses to watch, and with racing associations cooperating to the limit and with receiving barns and the saliva test rule operative, I might say that a doped horse will be a mighty exception and not 'oh, everybody does it' thing in 1934 and beyond.

"To horsemen, I should like to point out that animal addicts are not like humans. They can be cured quite easily. I dare say that if a horse which has been made an addict is turned out to pasture during the winter, or for perhaps no more than three months, he can be brought to the races without showing any ill effect from the use of drugs, and will run with all his normal speed."

GENEVA SET FOR D. & E.

Topped by the classic Geneva-Davis Elkins and historic Westminster-Grove City contests, at Beaver Falls and New Castle, respectively, a banner card of collegiate gridiron encounters is offered district fans today.

A pair of undefeated elevens meet at Reeves Stadium, Beaver Falls, as the Covenanters and Scarlet Hurricane battle. The Hurricane had its impressive record marred somewhat last Saturday when it was held to a 7-7 deadlock by West Virginia, but Coach Cam Henderson has worked diligently this week to correct the faults that bobbed up in that game and will have his Senators at the peak for today's clash with the Genevians. The probable starting lineup:

Geneva		Davis Elkins.
Begolly	L. E.	Hodges
Gramley	L. T.	Underwood
Paris	L. G.	Brommage
Campbell	C.	Gutowski
Weichel	R. G.	Pike
Nave	R. T.	E. Taylor
Rimbey	R. E.	Talbot
Grahame	Q. B.	S. Taylor
Trojano	L. H.	Flaharty
Robbins	R. H.	Winters
Nelle	F.	Shelton

In an intersectional contest of some color, Marquette, of Milwaukee, engages West Virginia, at Morgantown, the Westerners seeking revenge for the triumph scored by the Mountaineers at Milwaukee a year ago, when Eck Allen, Mountaineer quarterback, almost single-handedly accounted for the West Virginia triumph.

Westminster and Grove City will be renewing one of the oldest football rivalries in the tri-state area as they battle in the New Castle High School stadium. The contest looms as a toss-up, although the Crimson so far has gone through undefeated.

In other contests, Clairon Teachers meet California at California; Edinboro matches its snappy eleven against Thiel at Greenville; Juniata invades Waynesburg for a contest with the Yellow Jackets; Bethany and West Virginia Wesleyan go it at Buckhannon; Morris Harvey takes on West Liberty at West Liberty, and Allegheny travels outside the state for a clash with Oberlin, at Oberlin.

STOCK MARKET IRREGULAR AND QUIET

NEW YORK, Nov. 4.—Stocks were quietly irregular in the early part of today's short market session. Rails were about unchanged from yesterday's closing prices but other groups were sprinkled with fractional recessions.

U. S. Steel Bethlehem and American Telephone lost about a point each. Smaller declines occurred in Case, National Distillers, Chrysler and American Tobacco B. New York Central, Great Western Sugar and Baltimore & Ohio were about steady.

The advance in the RFC's gold price was more modest today, amounting to 10 cents, which boosted the price to $32.67. Foreign exchanges stiffened moderately against the dollar in the initial dealings, sterling rising 2 cents to $4.86¼, the highest since last July, and within ⅜ of a cent of its old parity with the dollar. The French gold franc, however, advanced only .005 of a cent to 6.07 cents, where it was well under the level indicated by the Washington gold price.

Week-end surveys were a little less cheerful than recently, with most of the weekly industrial barometers showing recessions, although the holiday trade prospects were viewed with considerable optimism, in view of the gains in employment over a year ago, and increased farm purchasing power.

GOERING FLAYS COMMUNISM

BERLIN, Nov. 4.—(AP.)—Hermann Wilhelm Goering, Prussian premier and national minister without portfolio, voiced an impassioned arraignment of Communism at today's session of the Reichstag Building fire trial.

Appearing as a witness in the case in which five men are on trial for setting fire to the building last February, Goering declared that "murder is Communism's first commandment." He asserted:

"Sadism has its home in the Communst Party and cruelties are nowhere so bestial as when the Communists are in a position to torture people."

Often shouting excitedly, Goering waxed more and more eloquent as he proceeded, gesticulating animatedly and moving nervously to and fro in the witness box.

STEEL MARKET FACING DULL SEASON

By B. E. V. LUTY

The time limit for the autumn expansion in steel demand reached early in October and since then the steel trade has been resigned to the prospect of a dull market in the remainder of the year. Long experience shows that November and December rarely originate anything affecting production of steel during the year. Previously established trends upwards or downwards may continue but the two months do not initiate anything. Sometimes December witnessed heavy buying of equipment after January 1 but with present marketing methods and an excess of production capacity that is scarcely a possibility now.

The official forecast of steel ingot production during the week was 26.1 per cent of capacity against 31.8 per cent forecast for last week and actual production reported for September at 40.80 per cent.

The sharp decline recently does not reflect much if any decrease in the volume of strictly new business received but rather the playing out of old business. The market has been very quiet for several weeks, this week merely showing a little increase in the dullness.

In keeping with the slowing down and in anticipation of inventory taking a special effort will be made to reduce stocks of pig iron, ingots and semifinished steel, whereby production of ingots in the remainder of the year will not be a strictly accurate measure of finished steel shipments, which should run above usual relationship to ingot production.

OUTPUT NOW TOPS '32

Production of steel ingots in the first 10 months of this year exceeded production in the whole of last year by 45 per cent. Should production in November and December average only 20 per cent of capacity the year would gain over 1932 by 63 per cent. Viewed at long range that would be a good step in the road of recovery, and the case is made stronger by the fact that this year was handicapped through its first quarter running 36 per cent under the same period of last year.

A 20 per cent average in the last two months of the year seems like a conservatively low assumption when November started with a rate of 26.1 per cent, but there may easily be a sharp dip in ingot production in the late weeks of the year. Finished steel shipments would not dip correspondingly as the code requires contract shipments to be completed by December 31.

While there has been no means of gauging directly the stocks of steel and manufactures of steel accumulated during the bulge which culminated in July or of measuring liquidation of stocks now, the bald figures of production, with ingot output reaching a peak rate of 60 per cent prove beyond peradventure that there was much accumulation somewhere. Ultimate consumption has decreased, but in no such ratio as production, and stocks would certainly be in process of liquidation now as there would be no reason to keep them. Ultimate consumption of steel in the current quarter will largely exceed production in the quarter.

CAR BUSINESS AHEAD

With the agreement reached on rails last Monday involving a price of $36.375 per gross ton f. o. b. mill, orders for more than a million tons of rails and track fastenings will be placed, but as there can be little track work done until spring and the railroads wish to save interest there is not likely to be much steel production in this connection during the next two or three months.

The next item in the railroad program, repairs to cars and locomotives, is likely to bring much tonnage to the mills in the relatively near future and purchases of new cars and locomotives are in eventual prospect.

The steel companies with captive coal mines have suffered no hardships from the long cessation of mining, having merely some extra cost in various cases by securing coal from more distant fields. When the men are ready to work there will not be much for them to do.

The scrap market has been devoid of activity even in small lots.

EGAN CHARGES 'FRAME-UP'

His jailing and the ruling out of the Communist party ticket for the election Tuesday were not accidental, James Egan, Communist candidate for Mayor, liberated three days ago, said in a speech celebrating the sixteenth anniversary of the Russian revolution in North Side Carnegie Hall last night.

The celebration was sponsored by the Communists.

Egan placed the blame upon Andrew W. Mellon and "Art" Rooney, whose names appeared as petitioners for the Communist party. Their names had been placed on the petition, Egan said, by his political rivals. Because of the presence of the names the ticket was ruled out, Egan said.

Junior Patrol Mail Box

Almost all of our Junior Patrol members we know have happy homes and wonderful mothers and fathers. And they have clean, soft beds to sleep in and plenty of good food to eat.

And they get money to buy candy and go to the show and to buy new clothes when they need them. But fellows, lots of people aren't so fortunate. Lots of people are hungry and have only dirty, miserable places to sleep. This month there will be a big campaign for money for the Welfare Fund. The Welfare Fund, you know, takes care of poor people, and helps them to win their way back to good health and comforts again.

You can help, fellows, and as good Junior Patrol members we hope that this will be one of the ways you will keep your pledge to help others. Just save a little of the allowance your father or mother gives you, or maybe the next time you get a dime for a soda or something just for yourself, put it to one side. And then give it to the Welfare Fund.

And tell your mothers and fathers about the Welfare Fund. Ask them to help, too. No one wants to be poor. They just can't help it. There are thousands and thousands of poor sick people who need your help. The Welfare Fund is the only way we can help many of them.

Outside Allegheny County, where we have many Junior Patrol members, they need money for the very same things. Give your bit to the charity nearest your home.

The long distance member today is Arthur Taleos, of R. D. No. 1, New Cumberland, W. Va. Arthur lives down where there are even more hills and bigger mountains than there are around here. Maybe you would like to start a patrol, Arthur. If you do, let us know, and send us the pleadges for your new members.

We are still looking for interesting stories about birds and animals, fellows. And we want Junior Patrol news just as soon as it happens.

CHAPTER XXIII.

In her new $5 a pair shoes that she had bought today her feet looked elegant. The flowered chiffon dress she wore was pretty as could be. Under the wide droop of her new blue hat, the blue of her eyes was vivid with excitement.

Magic worlds were opening now to this young girl. The turmoil of New York was left behind. Her thoughts soared, and the purr of the limousine made a running accompaniment.

Luxury! Beauty! Peace!

A sweet breeze, perfumed with the scent of green and growing things, caressed her face. Her heart was full of dreams, but with an underlying excitement.

"Well, my dear, you look as though you'd just stepped into a million dollars."

So spoke Jinny Judson as she lighted a cigaret from an electric gadget.

"I feel that way. You don't know what it means to me—this trip."

"It was wonderful of you to think of taking me along," said Nollie gratefully. "you don't know what a Good Samaritan you've been to me. I'll never forget it."

"Nonsense. I'm as selfish as the next one. And I like having you along." But Jinny Judson was touched.

REACH DESTINATION

It was a new experience to her to be with anyone who could enjoy little things with such intensity. The "verve" that Nollie brought to everything was a great gift.

The countryside grew prettier, and soon there was the salty tang of the sea.

The car bowled swiftly over the perfectly smooth roads. It all seemed like a dream to Nollie . . . this turn in her affairs . . . this feeling of luxury.

Then she remembered that Mrs. Judson hadn't said a word about a salary.

But that would be all right, Nollie felt sure. Whatever Mrs. Judson might or might not be, and erratic as certainly she was, she was generous.

"We're nearly there. There'll be a swift crowd. But it will be amusing."

Nollie saw herself. There was refinement in her face as well as beauty. She needn't be afraid of any of them.

He led the way through a wide hall to a sort of sun parlor to the right of the house.

A dozen people were making merry there over an enormous silver bowl with a dipper in it, and filled with a heart-warming liquid. There was no sign of the host.

Other people strolled in the bright sunshine on the lawns that had a magnificent view over the water.

STUDIES PEOPLE

Through the open door and windows came the chug-chug of speeding boats, and the brave flutter of sails. Not far away, a beautiful yacht rode at anchor.

Jinny Judson knew a number of these people who were congregated by the drinks. She presented Nollie to them carelessly as "my friend, Miss Day." Nollie felt rather embarrassed.

She was as good as they, down in her heart. She'd watch them, just the same—study them—learn of the social world from them.

A small woman, very flushed with drink, was making extraordinary goo-goo eyes at a boy half her age. She wasn't merely making eyes, but making love to him—quite noisily. The boy looked bored.

A rotund man in golfing tweeds was being very hilarious with a couple of fast-looking women. He kept thrusting the silver dipper deep into the bowl and pushing drinks at them.

Indeed, most of the dozen people in the charming sun parlor were already—at half past four in the afternoon—what they described as "pleasantly jingled."

Seeing their flushed faces, their more or less ardent gestures towards each other, hearing their loud jokes and louder laughter, Nollie was slightly disconcerted.

REFUSES DRINK

A good-looking young man offered her a sandwich. A footman brought her a cup of tea. The fat fellow in the golfing togs stopped flirting with his women long enough to press a cocktail on her.

That must be a cultivated taste. She thought the wet, slushy particles were horrid.

Then the nice-looking boy took her out to the lawns for a game of clock golf.

More and more people kept arriving. Presently Mrs. Judson came up to Nollie with a tall, thin man who proved to be the host.

"My little friend, Miss Day. I'm taking her up to the ranch with me."

"Why, Rhoda Vane, what are you doing here? I thought you were still in the South of France!" exclaimed the widow.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

Some smarty gals have a gift for cosmetic technique. The skillful touch of rouge, the delicate clouding of the eyelids, the carefully laid on powder film put the beauty of a Dresden shepherdess to shame. Other lassies make a mess of the whole business. They work too fast, don't consult the magnifying mirror, use any old beauty prop that happens to be at hand. Better a face that has been treated to soap and water and powdered than the one that is loaded with make-up, a complexion style that doesn't belong to this particular period. Cheek coloring is just about shelved, lip rouge has taken on a natural tone, eye shadows are dimmed. Eyebrows are still completely crazy, but what of it? The little dear-hearts started to weed 'em and couldn't find a stopping place. It's a joke.

Graceful carriage is dependent upon a properly poised backbone and comfortable shoes. To the backbone a woman gives scarcely a thought, and you know what she does with her pedals, crowds them into shoes that often are not properly designed. There are sensible shoes to be had. She has but to seek them. If the body is stretched tall, chest lifted, the backbone will naturally assume that nip-in at the waist line that makes for the charming silhouette.

SHERIDAN'S CHARGE NEAR WINCHESTER, VA., AGAINST GEN. EARLY, SEPT. 19, 1864

While Gen. Sherman advanced from Chattanooga toward the Atlantic, Gen. Meade's army undertook the difficult "Campaign of the Wilderness," designed to fight straight to Richmond, Va. The Army of the Potomac crossed the James River (June, 1864), to attack Richmond from the South, via Petersburg, which they besieged.

Meanwhile, the Confederates, under Gen. Early, crossed the Potomac, threatening the city of Washington. They were driven back near Winchester, Va., by Gen. Sheridan, who totally routed them a month later at Cedar Creek. Thus Washington was relieved definitely from invasion by the Confederates, who were now steadily forced back by the concentric drive of the Federals. (U. S. History)

ROOF TRUSSES SUPPORT ROOF (Gen. Science)

Trusses are framed structures, their members forming triangles in one plane. Roof trusses rest by their ends on top of walls, pillars, so that one end of truss is free to move horizontally for expansion caused by load or heat, as otherwise (if span is long) the expanding truss would force the walls apart (arch-effect).

THE GENERALS COUNSELLING NAPOLEON TO RETREAT FROM MOSCOW (1812)

To strike at England's economic power, Napoleon I forced the subjugated states to boycott British goods. Great Britain retaliated by prohibiting trade with France. Both pirated upon violators.

Non-adherence to the boycott by Portugal prompted Napoleon to march in and drive the Royal family to Brazil. For the same reason he attacked Alexander I, Czar of Russia, with a half million men, the Grand Army. He swept away military resistance, but could not conquer the Russian winter and famine, caused through destruction of food by fleeing Russians. He had to turn back from the burning Moscow and reached France with a few thousand ragged men. (World History)

SUCCESSION OF LIFE ON EARTH (Gen. Science)

Rocks of earth are pages of her history. They tell us of five eras, divided by great upheavals. The duration of the eras is estimated by comparing the rate of ground depositions of today to the total thickness of sedimentary rocks of each era. The time of decomposition of uranium into lead—which is known—gives also a basis of estimation by rocks containing lead and uranium. The remains or traces of living things preserved in rocks—called fossils—give clues to the existence of plants, animals, man. For time estimation of eras (added to above diagram) see Emmons, Thiel Stauffer, Allison: Geology.

ALKALI METALS (Chemistry)

Lithium (Li.), sodium (Na), potassium (K), rubidium (Rb), caesium (Cs), are alkali metals, their hydroxide being strong bases (alkalies). Above: Atomic structure (Bohr diagram) showing protons and half of electrons in nucleus (marked +) and number of satellite electrons in the different shells, besides the atomic number (positive nuclear charge). According to the periodic law, a sixth alkali metal exists (at. No. 87) yet undiscovered. Alkali metals have 1+ valence (give up 1 electron by combination); Na and K are the most important among them. Caesium has 2, 8, 18, 18, 8, 1 satellite electrons in 5 shells (not shown); its atomic no. is 55.

AWAKENED DRUNKARD TREATED AS NOBLEMAN

In the comedy, "Taming of the Shrew," the expressions are Shakespeare's own, while the story is taken from an older play.

Christopher, a drunken tinker, is found, then dressed and entertained as a jest by noblemen. He attends a play, which is the story of Katharina and Petruchio:

Star Footballers Show Today

Shlacksmacker, of Harvard, stands out like teacher's pet at recitation time. When they tapped him for the skull and keys he rang clear as a bell.

Tootsy Gluff, of Yale, is a six-letter man, a triple-theater and has thick ankles. He prepped at Rutgers, Princeton and Notre Dame and will try and see if his traveling scholarship is good for West Point.

Speed Noggles, of Pennsylvania, is a good man in a broken field, but his papa will tell you he ain't worth a hoot in a plowed one.

Stoopy Blattinger will long be remembered for his plaintive question upon emerging from a scrimmage with the world before him, the football in his arms and a wild desire to succeed.

Stoopy said, "Which way do you run now?"

He was flattened by 11 Virginia hillbillies who just happened to be going his way. Home was the fisherman, home from the sea, and the hunter home from the hills. Stoopy died for dear old Rutgers, Banks Business College, Bates, Arkansas Aggies, Northwestern. Stoops went to so many colleges he earned his alphabet.

Wango Jones has scored 300 ponts from scrimmage, kicked opponents from difficult angles and never asks for time out when he is on top the other guy.

Wango is back in Ohio State for his summer course. The secret of his long runs is that he doesn't know any professors to tip his hat to.

All these players will make the mythical all-American football 11 which has driven 500 ticket speculators crazy trying to find out where it plays.

The best game of the season will be next Saturday when Wango plays against Stoopy in a contest of skill, science and endurance. Bumps Holtzem will matriculate for that game if he can get credits from the Bureau of Missing Sophomores. The charges against Bumps now are Latin, history, trig and leaving the scene of an accident.

Vote for No. 8

The $25,000,000 Bond Issue Is of the First Importance—Comment on Local News.

It is appalling to think of the misery and confusion that would result if Pennsylvanians should disapprove at the election next Tuesday the proposed constitutional amendment No. 8, one of 12 that will appear on the ballot. This is the amendment that authorizes a $25,000,000 bond issue for unemployment relief, and hospital relief, and the relief of the state-aided universities.

Twenty million dollars is intended for unemployment relief. Pennsylvania must make this contribution if it is to continue to receive federal funds for relief purposes. How great the need is may be judged by the fact that Allegheny County will enter the winter with approximately 20,000 more families on its relief list than at the beginning of last winter.

The hospitals, too, are in desperate need of the $2,231,365 which will be their share of the bond issue. Miss Jessie J. Turnbull, president of the Hospital Association of Pennsylvania, says some will almost certainly be forced to close if the amendment fails, and others will be unable to support longer the burden of free service to the sick unemployed.

The people of Pennsylvania, of course, will not stand for the consequences of the defeat of No. 8. They will not permit unfortunate fellow-citizens to starve or die like dogs merely because they lack money to pay for food and hospital attention. The people will insist that if the money is not raised by the bond issue it be raised otherwise. That means, in all probability, oppressive new taxes.

Another desirable constitutional amendment is No. 5, which eliminates the poll tax requirement for voting in Pennsylvania. The citizen should not have to pay for the privilege of voting. The tax qualification has led to grave abuses; for corrupt political machines have used it as a means of bringing controlled and fraudulent voters to the polls.

Each voter should receive four separate ballots next Tuesday—one on which to vote for candidates for city, county and local offices, one containing the constitutional amendment proposals, a third on which to vote on prohibition repeal, and the fourth on which to vote on the question of legalizing Sunday ball games. Be sure that you receive all four.

Philadelphia is so certain that Sunday ball games will be authorized that its citizens have been wrangling over the question of the license fees that shall be charged. It has been decided to require a fee only for games at which admission is charged or collections are taken, and to have the fee range from $1 to $50, according to the attendance capacity of the field. Pittsburgh's City Council may gain some valuable suggestions from the Philadelphia discussion.

Gov. Pinchot's plan for liquor control has some good features, and should go a long way towards eliminating the evils that accompanied the Brooks law. We are less confident than the Governor, however, that the proposed state liquor stores can be kept out of politics. South Carolina had a somewhat similar system of state liquor dispensaries in the latter years of the pre-Volstead era, and a number of the public officials succumbed to the temptations for bribery and corruption that it presented.

The rebuke administered by Gov. Pinchot to Mayor James Crawford, of Duquesne, for his refusal to permit Lodge No. 187, of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers, to hold a meeting in a hall that they had rented was, if the facts are as represented, fully justified, and we are glad to note that it induced Mayor Crawford to change his mind and permit the meeting.

We can imagine only two reasons for Mayor Crawford's first denial of the right of the steelworkers to hold their meeting. He may have feared the meeting would lead to an outbreak of violence—a fear which was shown to be unfounded—or he may object to the unionization of steelworkers. If the latter was his motive, his arbitrary assumption of authority to forbid a meeting of the union was high-handed and tyrannical indeed.

Disregard of the Constitution and of the law is all too common among public officials. Under the heading, "Contempt of Law," the New York American calls attention to a Philadelphia magistrate's flagrant abuse of authority. He discharged all petty violators of the law who were before him the other day, and explained that this wholesale clemency was in celebration of the birth of a grandson that morning!

Another news item from Philadelphia, which will be of much interest to local students of astronomy, is the announcement of the opening of the Fels Planetarium in that city. The Astronomical Section of Pittsburgh's Academy of Science and Art has long advocated the establishment of a planetarium here to supplement the work of the Allegheny Observatory. Here is a worth while philanthropy for a millionaire.

An appeal for aid comes from the Pittsburgh Association for the Improvement of the Poor. It has fed 684,594 destitute men and women during the past nine months and supplied lodging to 215,126. It is confronted with a heavy burden in the work it will be called upon to do this winter. Here is another worth while opportunity for the charitably inclined.

Hundreds of Pennsylvania boys and girls are being denied the opportunity for high school education this year because of the state's financial crisis. Many schools will be unable to complete the school year because of lack of funds. Hence there is greater reason than usual to interest ourselves in public education. Next week is American Education Week. Visit the schools and help to solve their problems.

Science is made as fascinating as fiction in the American Weekly, the magazine distributed with the Sunday Sun-Telegraph. For example, in tomorrow's issue will be found an absorbing article by Prof. Rene Thevenin, the distinguished French scientist, entitled "If the Earth Suddenly Stopped Revolving." Prof. Thevenin's clear explanation is reinforced by vivid illustrations.

Mickey Mouse and Minnie go for a walk with a camera in tomorrow's issue of Puck, the Comic Weekly section of the Sunday Sun Telegraph. They take some pictures, which, on being developed, furnish a grand surprise. In addition to Walt Disney's inimitable comics, a number of other well-known favorites will be found in the 14 pages of Puck.

Out!

Good news for America came out of Washington on Tuesday.

Over at Geneva our Ambassador-at-Large has been sitting around with the Disarmament Conference—and suddenly learned that it was a very dangerous and explosive proposition.

Consequently, our Government at Washington has decided that the Ambassador had better come home. The Disarmament Conference has blown up and was not accomplishing anything anyway.

That was George Washington's farewell advice to his countrymen. Our several post-war experiences in the affairs of Europe have evidently taught us, at last, that Washington's advice is everlastingly good.

Pan-American Conference Program Limited

By James T. Williams, Jr.

IF the Seventh Pan-American Conference soon to convene at Montevideo is to promote accord among its participants, its agenda must be limited to business that is truly Pan-American.

This means that the conference must keep hands off the Monroe Doctrine, the Platt Amendment, the Panama Canal and the Nicaraguan Canal route.

The Monroe Doctrine is not a Pan-American doctrine, but a doctrine enunciated by the United States, maintained by the United States, and subject exclusively to the interpretations of the United States.

As has been so pertinently said by the Hon. J. Reuben Clark, Jr., in a memorandum recently published, at the suggestion of the Department of State by the United States Senate:

"The doctrine does not concern itself with purely American relations; it has nothing to do with the relationship between the United States and other American nations, except where other American nations shall become involved with European governments in arrangements which threaten the security of the United States; and even in such cases, the doctrine runs against the European country, not the American nation, and the United States will primarily deal thereunder with the European country and not with the American nation concerned."

* * *

Asks Mr. Clark To Accompany Hull

FORTUNATELY for the success of the Montevideo Conference, President Roosevelt, upon the recommendation of Secretary Hull, has asked Mr. Clark to accompany the Secretary of State as ranking member of the American delegation at which Mr. Hull will be ex-officio chairman.

Throughout the length and breadth of Latin America, Mr. Clark is highly respected as an eminent jurist, who, as solicitor of the Department of State, as Undersecretary of State, and recently as American Ambassador to Mexico, has rendered manifold services of incalculable value in creating a better understanding between the three Americas.

As for the Platt Amendment, this is an engagement between the United States and Cuba that is the exclusive business of these two countries. It has, therefore, no place upon the agenda of any international conference anywhere at any time.

Similarly, the Panama Canal is exclusively the business of the United States. By the treaty of 1903, which the first President Roosevelt negotiated with Panama, that republic granted in perpetuity to the United States exclusive canal rights throughout its entire territory. These rights were essential to the building of the canal. They are no less essential to its successful operation and its effective defense.

* * *

The Treaty With Nicaragua

ANY attempt from any source to bring up at Montevideo the relations of Panama and the United States growing out of the Panama Canal would rightly be regarded by the American people as an intolerable interference with their domestic concern.

Although the Nicaraguan Canal has not yet been started, the United States and Nicaragua have entered into a treaty that gives to this country permanent and exclusive canal rights throughout Nicaragua. When that canal is to be built, as well as its control and operation, are matters that concern exclusively the United States and Nicaragua, and therefore have no place in the deliberations of an international conference.

There is no disposition on the part of responsible statesmen in the Republic to the South to introduce into the deliberations at Montevideo the purely domestic concerns of any participating power. But responsible statesmen there and here will do well to guard against the mischief-making activities of the walking delegates for the League of Nations and of other war-breeding alliances of the Old World.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Nov. 4.—Shortly after midnight I turned into Fifth avenue from the 40's for the last lap of a leisurely walk home. Hesitating at the curb near old Delmonico's corner a rather weary voice above me called: "Kerridge, sir? Very exclusive!" A ghost of yesterday—a hansom!

Once king of New York streets, there it stood forlornly with an ancient nag glooming in its collar. The grizzled driver, perched like a moulting sparrow on his high seat, repeated: "Kerridge, sir? Very exclusive!" The last hansom ride was 20 years ago.

Joe Cawthorne and Queenie Vassar were playing at the Globe, as I remember. It had come on to rain and my wife and I plunged into an extravagance. We could ill afford to carriage to Mrs. MacFadden's boarding house on West Seventy-second street. For us a glorious twinge. I would try to recapture it.

So I stepped onto a foot rest and into what has now become a strange vehicle. The horse, feeling sudden new weight, was properly astonished. His ears went up. The jehu clucked "Tsk, tsk!" and we moved off smoothly like the first sinking glide of a roller coaster.

* * *

In mutual excitement I had forgotten to give and he to ask directions. A tiny lid opened in the roof above. "Where to, Major? A casual night wayfarer. I had all of a sudden, like Noel Coward's hiccup, become a person of importance—a Major. "Up the avenue to the park and down Broadway," I called.

* * *

Extraordinary coziness about the waist-high doors, romance in turn of high wheels while hooves sparked clippity-clop, clippity-clop. Likely the older hansom generation resents the stuffy lurching go-devil taxis and sometimes insolent drivers. Here indeed a luxurious armchair on wheels. Something of a benign gentleness in the way the whiplash swirled caressingly over the horse's flanks. In this same seat one day, I mused, perhaps a blood in plaid trousers sat sucking the top of a cane.

* * *

Imagination, encouraged by the nibble of a scanty moon, made one almost hear a feminine voice and see a raised and protesting hand in half-fingered white gloves. "Fie, fie, you should not embrace so helpless a girl. I am at your mercy, sire!" And the stroked mustached reply: "Then Guinevere, may I declare my intentions to your father on the morrow?" Ghosts!

* * *

We bowled on in echoey clip-clop, turning west at 59th. Once noted for the sedate red-bricked Dakota now a dazzling array of white, stepping spires, ultra modern and stiff. Ward Morehouse and Billy Gaxton chatting in front of the Essex. Over the Central Park's rolling meadows a curtain of hushed shadows punctured by goblin motor lights zigzagging the curves.

* * *

Columbus Circle. How many hundred hansoms had rolled up to Reisenweber's and Faust's in other days. Robust nights and dawns with silk hats drooping over a hansom's double doors. A few steps north of the rondure Bustanoby's, haunt of Diamond Jim, the Castles, Mae Murray and other elegantees of the era. But tonight only scattery huddles at the curb, breadline unfortunates having a last "drag" at cabarets before seeking warmth of abandoned hallways.

* * *

Broadway beaconed in rosy light. A roysterer stepping into his modern taxi hesitates to jeer at my serenely oblivious charioteer. Perhaps the driver, like his fare, was dreaming, too, of forgotten days. Instead of Rector's and the whine of Ted Lewis' clarinet now the smart alec sandwich joints where a newer broadway figuratively cuts throats instead of capers.

* * *

Shanley's gone also. The luncheon corner at the Claridge a jimcrack botique. The Palace a continuous movie. Clippety-clop. Ghosts, ghosts. A chain drug store where the Knickerbocker once reared a proud facade. Bright jacketed books strung where Maxfield Parrish's "Old King Cole" gazed down. Browne's Chop House gone. Lorber's, Joel's, Considine's, John McGraw's billiard parlor. The Herald Square Theater. The blinking green-eyed owl along Bennett's building. Ghosts. Ghosts.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

Why Do We Give Way to Self-Pity?

Self-pity—what a favorite indoor sport it has become these last four years!

Once upon a time love-sick youngsters and soured oldsters were its main addicts. Nowadays the whole world's that way! Big six-foot bruisers sit around and blubber over themselves. Perfectly husky males, who should be out digging ditches, moo and meow over the radio by the hour, telling the world about their Bloo-oo-oes. In short, having a Good Hard Cry over ourselves is the best thing most of us do!

Why?

Is it really because we're having all the Bad Breaks? Or is there, maybe, another reason?

There's another reason—a secret, twisted reason.

WE PITY OURSELVES BECAUSE WE WANT TO BE IMPORTANT.

Now there's nothing wrong or unnatural in wanting to be important. We were born for that purpose. We were born to live—to do something with life—to do something with ourselves. Self-preservation, self-development; these are the first purposes of our lives. Self-expression—that is the deepest hunger in every life.

And it's a healthy and useful hunger, if treated properly. A man will lift himself out of the gutter if given a chance to express himself finely and proudly.

But if he is denied that chance, if his hunger for self-expression is continually thwarted—

HE'LL NOT ONLY STAY IN THAT GUTTER, BUT HE'LL COPYRIGHT IT, TAKE OUT MOVIE RIGHTS AND STAGE A SOLO-STAR PERFORMANCE!

Why is self-pity?

That is why.

Self-pity is the desperate ruse of a sick soul to feed its own hungry egotism.

We want to be important. The life in us wants out! We must be important or we'll perish from our own humiliation. But the cards seem stacked against us.

That, of course, needn't stop us. If we have plenty of spunk, we can survive any obstacle. But most of us haven't plenty of spunk. We're timid, bewildered, easily discouraged. Also, we're lazy. It's tough to keep plugging along, bucking the line.

Yet, we MUST put ourselves on record! Show we're different. Get a hearing, somehow.

AND SO, SINCE WE CAN'T BECOME MASTERS, WE BECOME MARTYRS.

If we can't prove that we're God's little pets, WE CAN, AT LEAST, MAKE FOLKS REALIZE THAT HE'S PICKING ON US WORSE THAN ANYONE ELSE.

WE'LL LISTEN TO OURSELVES!

WE'LL BE IMPORTANT TO OURSELVES!

WE'LL GIVE OURSELVES A HAND.

Self-pity! There's the secret, sick reason behind it. And does that make YOU want to snap out of it? Or does it?

MARRY-GO-ROUND

By Helen Rowland

Light as Autumn Leaves

"What chance has a married man?" says the Cynic. "If he comes in late and doesn't give his wife a good excuse, she thinks he's guilty—and if he does, she thinks he's lying."

* * *

To kiss a bride at her wedding is foolish. Why not save your compliments and kisses for a year or so, when she might appreciate them as a novelty?

* * *

Nothing genuine is quite so glittering as its imitation—and no girl can expect a man who really loves her to be as artistic and effective in his love-making as one who is merely pretending to love her.

Ninon de L'Enclos may have been a siren to the end; but most women, who go on playing the love-game too long, have to choose between running a kindergarten and running a charity bureau for the romantically bankrupt or the financially broke.

Love, says Reno Ruth, isn't meant to bring anybody eternal happiness; it is only meant to show you what it might be LIKE, if human beings were less "human" and knew how to capture it.

When a man declares that it is impossible to please a woman, it is a sign that he is trying to please too MANY women, instead of concentrating on one at a time.

* * *

* * *

In the play, the all-absorbing problem is "Will she succeed in getting him?"—in real life, it is oftener "Will she succeed in losing him?"

* * *

A man may love a woman even though he hates her cooking—but, somehow, no man can love a woman's cooking without feeling some sort of tenderness for her.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

You may be spending many evening hours in study of matters relative to your business or daily work or in gaining knowledge in a better sense.

Each morning finds your body dull in action, your mind dull from lack of required rest.

In such circumstances you have not benefited from your hours of study.

There will be less close application and less careful work when you are "dead for sleep" and that means you make more mistakes or errors.

In fact, most of the tragedies and calamities happening so constantly may be traced to those who, through lack of rest or some other mind-affecting circumstances, have not full possession of their senses.

Plan to improve your mind, for that is commendable, but don't do it at the expense of physical and mental well-being.

OUR RHYMING OPTIMIST

By Aline Michaelis

Innocence

from eyes
Of truth to look upon a world as true
As its own thought, and from the heart devise
Creation fair as in first dawning's dew.
This is the gift of innocence: to lend
A portion of enchantment to old earth;
To see in every smiling face a friend,
To hear in all wild laughter, silvery mirth.

O, innocence, that can dark care beguile
With your glad presence and your look of light,
Revisit weary hearts a little while
As joyous day returning after night;
And if you can come back in dreams alone,

Human Side of the News

By Edwin C. Hill

THE Stock Exchange, having bluffed Tammany to a standstill, booms along, waiting for the day to come again when the lamb shall lie down with the lion—but inside the lion. They say history repeats, and it more than does that in the record of the stock exchange. The fact is that the story of Wall street has been always that of its first two Titans—Cornelius Vanderbilt and Daniel Drew—staged over and over again, with only the generations new and the principals different men.

Old men they were in the Civil War days—Vanderbilt, the dreamer and builder of empires, dictatorial, silver-haired, with a tongue as sharp as a top sergeant's; Drew, the gambler and trickster, tall, cadaverous, a pious hypocrite, an illiterate old man who kept track and account of his mighty fortune of 13 millions in his head.

Vanderbilt caught Drew in the first great corner the market knew. Old Daniel sold short of the Colonel's Harlem Railroad and leaped right into the trap. He whined and wept his way out for a cool million dollars, and Vanderbilt was to rue the day that he let the old skinflint off so easily.

Uncle Daniel soon hooked up with two young men of 30—one a boisterous showoff, a former Vermont peddler by name of Jim Fisk; the other an undersized, retiring fellow, a mouse trap inventor from the Catskills, by name Jay Gould. There's no tale in all the tomes to compare to what they did to Vanderbilt in 1868. Secretly they set up a printing press and turned out 100,000 shares of Erie stock, leaving Vanderbilt to hold an empty sack while they stuffed $6,000,000 in greenbacks into a couple of satchels and fled by ferry to safety in New Jersey, just one jump ahead of the sheriff and the enraged old colonel.

Corner Gold Market And Ruin Many

A YEAR later and the daring pair had cornered the gold market, bringing about the famous Black Friday of September 24, 1869, when gold went to 165, and ruined men went insane while others with revolvers sought out Gould and Fisk. The Treasury of the United States had to dump gold on the market to break that corner.

Gould cleaned up ten million dollars. Fisk was spared for the bullet from Ned Stokes, in their quarrel over Josie Mansfield, but before his murder he and Gould found time to strip old Daniel Drew of his millions, to leave him to die penniless.

There's nothing in the annals of these days to match those episodes, nor is there any to equal the epic struggle of 1901 when Edward H. Harriman, son of a Long Island clergyman, and Jim Hill, builder of the Northwest, fought for control of the Union Pacific. The house of Morgan stood behind Hill, and Harriman had the support of Kuhn, Loeb & Co. On May 9, 1901, Northern Pacific reached $1,000 a share and the sale of 3,073,000 shares of all stocks for the day was recorded on the hopelessly inadequate ticker. That night the bankers came to their senses and made a peace.

An almost unbelievable parallel is to be found for our own bull market in that which began in 1900 on the signal of McKinley's victory over Bryan. The steel corporation was organized and there was a mania for organizing new companies and corporations, good, bad and indifferent. Our fathers and uncles of the mauve decade left plows and ledgers to rush into the stock market.

Keene and Gates Leaders in 1900

AS 1928 had its Mike Meehans and William C. Durants, 1900 had Jim Keene and John W. Gates. It was Gates who in 1902 staged the coup of winning control of the Louisville and Nashville Railroad. And he sold it out at 3 o'clock in the morning in the old Waldorf Astoria to the Morgans for ten million dollars. A high price any day, but Morgan was willing to pay it to keep this mischief maker from interfering with his Southern Railway Company. The bubble burst in 1903. The losses were colossal and severe because the liquidation had been too long delayed. Then Henry, Clews, the banker, fifty years in Wall street, was to write:

"Both Wall street and the outside public have lost the faith that they had in many stock market leaders, the men who were once followed blindly in their schemes of inflation and regarded as omnipotent in their execution.

"Wall street and the public," continued Mr. Clews, "also have lost faith in new ventures, new railway and industrial issues, as well as in the good judgment and good faith of the corporations concerned. The revelations of fraud, chicanery and excessive capitalization have undeceived even the dullest and most credulous believers in the schemes and schemers which took the country by storm in the days of Wall street's wild and pyro-technical speculation."

So said Henry Clews, and remember, he spoke not yesterday or today, but 30 years ago. Yet who would change even a comma in the words if they had been used to describe the public reaction to the collapse of 1930?

Isn't It So?

There is no harm in a man's being in advance of his age providing he has money enough to live on until his age catches up with him.

But we preach Christ crucified, unto the Jews a stumbling block, and unto the Greeks foolishness; But unto them which are called, both Jews and Greeks, Christ the power of God, and the wisdom of God.—I. Corinthians, 1:23, 24.
